At Summit's End

Leaders Say World Is Closer to Peace

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon wound up his summit talks with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev Saturday and said they had moved the world closer to peace.

His ebullient guest agreed as they mingled with movie stars, politicians and businessmen at a party Nixon gave for Brezhnev at the side of the swimming pool.

"I feel happy," Brezhnev said. He said he hopes U.S.-Soviet relations are forever based on "mutual respect and friendship of our people and that there are no more wars."

The President and the Communist general secretary had worked together through the afternoon at Nixon's villa overlooking the Pacific. They put the finishing touches on a communique to be issued Monday that reportedly accents nuclear arms limitations and European troop reductions.

Nixon, speaking to his guests, said he believed the agreements reached during the week "will contribute to the peace of the world that everyone here wants and that the general secretary and I have been working toward."

Referring to the fact that his villa, Casa Pacifica, means "the House of Peace" in Spanish, the President said he hopes peace will become a reality, "not only for the American and the Soviet people but for all the peoples of the world."

In an obviously exuberant mood, the President said that because of the house's name, even though he and Brezhnev shared a mutual fondness for western movies and the cowboy stars on hand, "everyone has checked his holster belt at the door."

Responding, Brezhnev said the accords he had reached with Nixon "consolidate and reaffirm the friendly relations between our people and our states." He added that he would like that "the name of this house be symbolic."

Earlier, their spokesmen expressed similar sentiments in briefing newsmen. Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House press secretary, said he was confident that the "habit of cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union was growing stronger."

Brezhnev, meanwhile, was quoted as saying that a 'big step forward has been made."

At the same time, the two leaders did not try to paper over the fact that differences exist between the United States and the Soviet Union. Moreover, the Soviets indicated the new pact to avert nuclear war does not rule out military shipments to belligerents in the Middle East, Indochina and other parts of the world.

But the general atmosphere was mostly sweetness and light.

Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House press secretary, summarized Nixon's comments: "The President is very satisfied with the range of issues discussed, with the wide scope of the agreements reached in all fields, with the excellent atmosphere that pervaded all the talks, with the emphasis on concrete accomplishment."

Speaking for Brezhnev, the general director of Tass, Leonid M. Zamyatin, hailed the "business-like and constructive atmosphere" and said the Soviet leader "is satisified with the talks and the progress that has been achieved."

In the President's second-floor study, overlooking the Pacific, Nixon and Brezhnev apparently were deciding on points Brezhnev will carry to French President Georges Pompidou to soften European concerns about the U.S.-Soviet agreements reached during the summit week.

One of Pompidou's major anxieties is that they would lead to a sharp cutback to American troops in Europe, leaving France in a secondary place to West Germany as the United States and the Soviet Union drew closer together.

The 20-page communique may also sound final rhetorical taps for the Cold War and indicate whether Washington or Moscow intends to exert a calming influence over the Middle East. It will be issued Monday morning as Brezhnev leaves for France.

Briefing newsman in a circus-style tent one mile from the Western White House, Ziegler and Zamyatin attempted to emphasize the joint declaration signed Friday for "urgent consultations" and joint efforts to avert war and nuclear disaster.

Just outside the tent, about 30 demonstrators sympathetic to Soviet Jews and to the Estonia and Lithiuanian minorities marched by carrying such signs as: "Mr. Nixon — Do Not Associate with the Devil."

The last demonstrator in the procession carried a gallows with a dummy hanging in effigy. They moved to within 200 yards of the entrance to the President's home before roadblocks interrupted their progress.

The Soviet leader, who became the first foreign visitor to stay overnight at the President's home here, set aside Saturday afternoon to prepare an address to the American people to be broadcast nationwide at 6 p.m. Sunday.

He is expected to accent the cooperative spirit between Moscow and Washington that has characterized the summit discussions.

Astronauts To Visit With Nixon, Brezhnev

ABOARD USS TICONDEROGA (AP) — Skylab's astronauts were "much, much improved" Saturday after a good night's rest, and doctors cleared them for a visit Sunday with leaders of the world's two space-faring nations.

Astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz, who returned to earth Friday from man's longest space journey, are snapping back from dizziness and weakness caused by exposure to weightlessness during their record 28-day mission, doctors said Saturday.

"Things are looking much, much improved," Dr. W. Royce Hawkins, the astronauts' chief physician, said at the Johnson Space Center near Houston.

Kerwin, who suffered the most severe symptoms from space de-conditioning, is "one thousand per cent better now," said Hawkins.

Both Conrad and Weitz, he said, are "in excellent shape."

America's newest space heroes are scheduled to visit President Nixon and Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev Sunday at the western white house in San Clemente, Calif.

The astronauts will be flown from this carrier by helicopter for the two-hour presidential visit.

Doctors said the astronauts' two-hour stay at the western White House will be under strict medical control. The spacemen are still in a post-mission quarantine period and their contact with other people is carefully controlled.

Hawkins said the astronauts will wear surgical-style masks during most of the meeting with Nixon and Brezhnev.

"You may see pictures of the crew with the president without masks," said the doctor, "but they'll be upwind and more than two meters (about six feet) apart."

The quarantine is an effort to protect the spacemen from disease during the post-mission period when their resistance is low.

Hawkins said none of the symptoms seen in the astronauts were life-threatening or permanently debilitating.

Instead, he said, the symptoms were part of the adaptive mechanism as the astronauts readjust to gravity.

Ceiling Prices On Request

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning Monday, stores throughout the nation will have to provide legal ceiling prices to customers who request them.

The customers, however, will have to fill out a form and wait for up to two days for the answer.

For food stores, requirements under President Nixon's 60-day price freeze will be tougher. Each food retail store must keep on hand a list of legal freeze prices for immediate inspection by consumers. And the posting requirements of the President's ceilings on meat prices remain in effect.

The Cost of Living Council said 2,000 Internal Revenue Service agents will conduct spot checks nationally beginning Monday to make sure stores are complying with the requirements. If any stores are caught in violation, they will be asked immediately to roll back their prices to the legal ceiling.

The requirements actually go into effect at 11:59 p.m. Sunday.

As the government geared up for the new requirements, the Cost of Living Council began investigating whether the 60-day freeze is causing any food shortages, particularly in poultry, eggs and tomatoes. A council official said there have been allegations that shortages have been developing but it will be another week before the government can document the claims of farmers and their representatives.

Consumers will have to take the trouble to fill out a card or information slip if they want to demand from most stores the legal ceiling price for an item they are buying.

According to the rules, sellers must make available at each place of business request forms that consumers can fill out and give to the store. Within 48 hours, the seller must supply the consumer the legal ceiling price requested.

As for food stores with total sales of more than $25 million, consumers should expect to find inspection lists of ceiling prices available.

This list will contain the freeze prices of at least the 40 best-selling items in each department. Or, the store has the option of listing prices for items which accounted for at least 50 per cent of its total dollar sales in each department.

Since March 29, supermarkets have had to post in their stores the legal ceiling prices for beef, lamb and pork. These remain in effect. For all other stores, the only poster required is a 22 x 28-inch sign telling consumers that they can obtain legal prices by filling out a request with the store.

Meanwhile, the council said that IRS agents will begin this week to conduct the "price and profit sweep" promised by the President when he announced the freeze on June 13. The council will use financial forms submitted by companies, some of which are due June 30 and some of which are already on hand.

Bees Take Over Parked Volkswagen

Since it was hot Saturday afternoon, Alice Wagner told her husband Pat to roll down the windows when she parked her 1971 Volkswagen at 315 South Ohio to do a little shopping. A normal enough thing to do on a fairly normal June afternoon.

However, when about 6,000 bees decide to take a break in your VW, normality comes to an abrupt halt.

"I was in at Burton's trying on clothes and my husband said 'Look at all those bees in the sky.' I was in the dressing room and I thought they were joking" when someone said the bees went into her car, Mrs. Wagner explained.

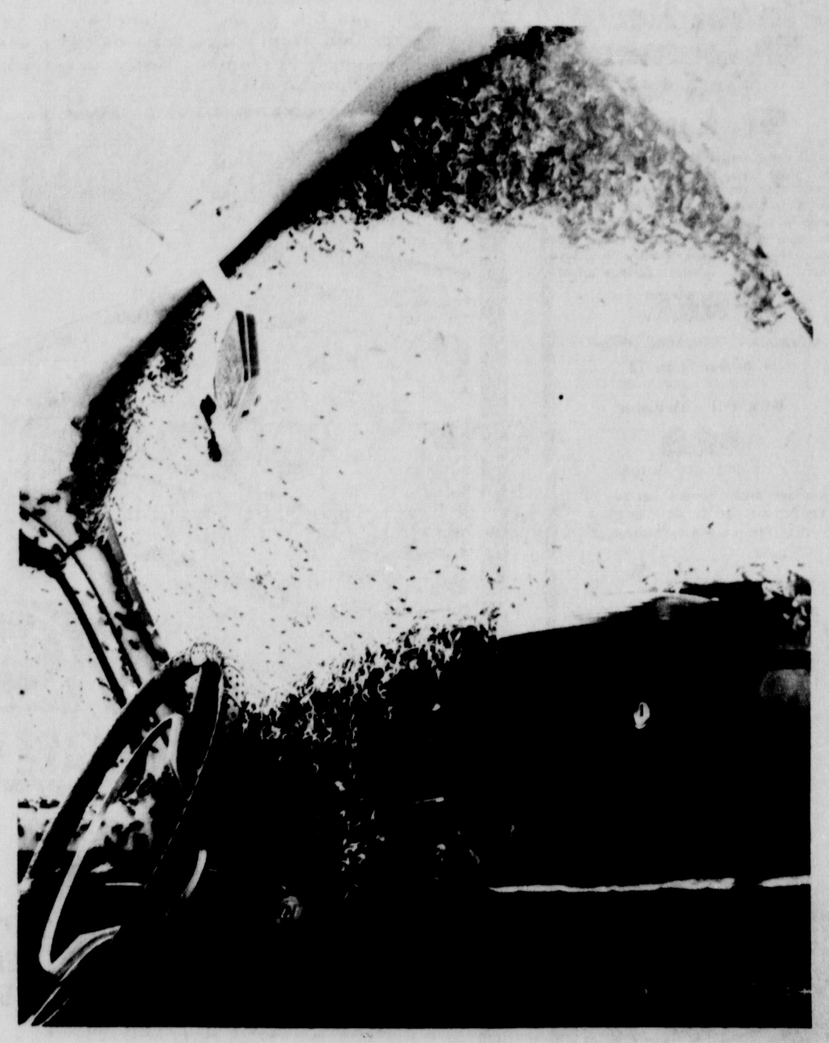

She said when she came out to model the outfit she had tried on, everyone was outside looking at the bees which had hijacked her means of transportation.

The Wagners parked the car at about 3 p.m. and it was only about 15 minutes later that the bees moved in, according to spectators.

When The Democrat-Capital photographer arrived and asked whose car it was, Mrs. Wagner admitted it was hers after some husbandly prodding. "I had to talk a long time for that car and look what's happened to it," she lamented, looking on helplessly from the sidewalk.

Luckily, an employe of Archias Seed Store has his name with the police department for such occasions.

Talks to Eagleton

Peterson Seeking Farm Fuel

(Democrat-Capital Service)

MARSHALL — State Rep. William A. Peterson of the 46th District is engaging in an intense campaign here to insure that agricultural production is not curtailed by an apparent squeeze in available fuels.

Peterson told The Democrat-Capital, "I began receiving calls from farmers because they could not get fuel to harvest crops. When I put it together, it came down to two major oil companies." He declined to name the firms.

According to Peterson, some of the farmers who contacted him indicated their fuel supplies were limited to what they had in their tanks, while others said they could not run their machinery.

Peterson said he contacted state and area officials in an attempt to remedy the situation, and also attempted to contact Gov. Christopher S. Bond. "I received no satisfaction there either, so I called Sen. (Thomas F.) Eagleton's office. And, as it happened, the same thing happened in the Farmington area Friday and he called the oil companies," Peterson said.

He indicated that Eagleton's call evidently got some results since the oil companies "indicated they would change their distribution procedures immediately."

Peterson added, "By Monday there's supposed to be an announcement about new distribution procedures, but whether it'll come I can't tell. Some of the companies have loosened up a little, but I don't know if it's temporary or permanent."

The Marshall lawmaker reported he heard of similar problems in northern Saline County, the northern portion of Pettis County and parts of Cooper County.

"The Justice Department should have done something a month ago," he said about major fuel distributors cutting back in their distributions.

Peterson said he had to approach reports of farmers being denied fuel with care because he wanted to avoid situations where fuel was withheld for legitimate reasons, such as credit problems.

In a prepared statement, Peterson said, "The local crisis is a direct result of the prejudicial distribution system and that system must be restructured if this nation's food and fiber is to be harvested to fulfill the needs of our people."

The same release said the situation "is significantly intervening with the cultivation of crops and harvesting of grain" in the 46th District.

Starting Monday

Dean's Testimony To Be Public

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III's testimony against President Nixon goes public Monday after a week of tantalizing previews.

Dean, fired from the White House staff, is expected to admit that he took part in planning and covering up the Watergate wiretapping. He is also expected to say the President's top aides knew of the bugging plans, that the President knew of the cover-up, and that the White House engaged in other illegal and improper acts.

The ousted White House counsel had been scheduled to begin testifying publicly last week, but the committee postponed the appearance until after Nixon's summit talks with Soviet Leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said the delay was to prevent anyone from blaming the committee if the summit talks turned sour.

But news leaks and counterleaks kept the story on front pages despite the delay. Much of Dean's story, and the administration's case against him, are now known.

Aside from the Dean story, there were few new developments in the Watergate scandal. It was announced that special prosecutor Archibald Cox is studying whether Nixon fund-raisers used extortion to get campaign contributions.

Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt's lawyer said Hunt had accused former presidential counselor Charles Colson of ordering him to break into the apartment of Arthur Bremer shortly after Bremer shot Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. Colson called that testimony preposterous and accused one newspaper, The Washington Post, of trying to discredit him.

Dean had been questioned behind closed doors Saturday, June 17, when it was still thought he would begin public testimony last week. Under immunity, he told for the first time under oath much of what he knows about Watergate and other matters.

Monday the committee, urged by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and Republican Leader Hugh Scott, postponed the hearings. At least one committee member and several staff aides immediately said privately they were worried that Nixon loyalists would use the time to try to discredit Dean in advance of his public appearance.

That evening columnist Jack Anderson, indicating his information came from "the President's men," reported that Dean had admitted using $4,000 in campaign money to finance his honeymoon last year. Others had the story the next day. Republican Leader Scott called Dean an "embezzler" and a "turncoat."

Following the anti-Dean leak, other parts of Dean's story broke into print. Dean took part in discussions of bugging with Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and others and told

Tries To Teach Honesty, Integrity

Dear Ann Landers: As a suburban high school teacher, I was particularly interested in the mother's condemnation of the store manager who caught her son shop-lifting a 39-cent pen. She called him a "monster" because he made her "little boy" feel like a criminal.

Please tell that mother an 11-year-old kid who steals a 39-cent pen has a good chance of becoming a 16-year-old rip-off artist.

Many of my students have the idea that it's perfectly O.K. to take anything they can get away with. Some of these kids work part-time in stores and they've figured out techniques for heisting that would make your hair stand on end.

As a teacher I try to emphasize the importance of honesty and integrity. But how does one fight a lifetime of home values where the mother takes the child's side against everyone who dares criticize him? Answer, please. — Palatine, Illinois

Dear Pal: It's difficult. Very difficult. But don't give up. Teachers can make an enormous impact on the lives of students—especially when there is no inspiration or uplifting influence at home. I urge you to hang in there, Teacher. These kids need you.

Dear Ann Landers: When I read your advice to the young girl who had been molested by her uncle, I was pleased that you had the courage to deal with the subject in your column. I have been a social worker for five years and would have given the same advice. But you stopped too soon.

Often that "kind aunt" or "favorite relative" you advised the child to seek out for help is hundreds of miles away. It's awfully hard to write a letter about such a problem, especially if you are only nine years old and scared to death.

Many families don't attend church, so "the clergyman" is not a possibility. Too many children see the family doctor for only a few minutes when they get their shots for camp. He is a stranger to them. The teacher is usually too busy and overworked. Besides, most children would fear loss of status if the teacher knew.

Please, Ann, tell children that molesting is against the law in every state in the union and if they are afraid to stay home with a father or an uncle who has molested them, they can go to the police and ask to be put in a foster home. There are legal provisions for voluntary or court-ordered placement. This is the solution for children whose mothers know what is going on but won't do anything about it. — California S.W.

Dear S.W.: Thanks for the information. It was good of you to write.

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of an ex-wife who goes to her ex-father-in-law's funeral, sits in front with the immediate family, cries louder than the wife-in-good-standing, pushes herself into one of the special cars reserved for the family, goes to her ex-sister-in-law's house after the funeral for a hearty meal, eats everything in sight and then nearly passes out from grief when her former mother-in-law arrives?

Would it not have been better sense to have gone quietly to the funeral, sat in the back and then gone home? We'd like you opinion. — An Observer

Dear O.: It depends on whether or not she wanted an audience.

Study Rising Medical Costs

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Regional evaluations of health care services will tackle the problem of rising costs in a new comprehensive health care plan being set up in Missouri.

Edward J. Peloquin, director of Comprehensive Health Care Planning in the Department of Community Affairs, said Thursday citizens can no longer afford to keep building more and more hospitals.

He announced a plan of regional health care councils which will study the needs and costs of services in their communities.

The Comprehensive Health Care Plan will be administered under new Federal Social Security provisions allowing the regional councils to review health services and either approve or disapprove them under criteria such as availability and cost.

If a health care facility or service is not approved by the regional council, it will not be eligible to receive federal medicaid and medicare payments.

Peloquin said the regional councils made up of volunteers will first attack the problem of rising costs because of health care facilities such as hospitals.

Peloquin described the health care industry as "fragmented" making it difficult to determine exactly why health care costs have risen so fast in recent years.

The regional health care evaluation idea is simply one in which the people who pay the bills will be asked to volunteer their various knowledge and skills in an attempt to reduce the cost of health care for their communities.

New hospitals are not always the answer to better health care, Peloquin said.

The regional councils will try to set up programs for their areas that will include more outpatient facilities, paramedical programs, and volunteer planning and supervision.

The regional councils will be made up of both those who provide health care services like physicians, and those who pay the bills.

The 20 regional councils will deal with both public and private health care facilities.

Peloquin said once the problem of facilities is carefully evaluated and dealt with, other cost factors such as physician charges and insurance costs will be examined.

He cited laws in Pennsylvania which require insurance companies to make their health insurance policies readable by the average citizen before they can sell the policies in the state.

"We don't know," Peloquin said referring to the reasons for increasing health care costs.

He said the regional evaluations will attempt to find those answers so changes can be made in the entire concept of health care so people can afford it.

Testimony

presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman "what was going on," according to a digest of Dean's sworn testimony.

Also from that digest:

—Dean met with Mitchell, Robert C. Mardian and Jeb Stuart Magruder the day after the Watergate raid "regarding how to handle publicity."

—John D. Ehrlichman, another presidential aide, told Dean to "lean on" the deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Lt. Gen. Vernon Walters, to get him to cooperate in detouring the FBI's investigation.

—Haldeman and Ehrlichman wanted Dean to help Magruder "get through the grand jury," where Magruder says he lied with Dean's help.

—President Nixon told Dean, after Magruder escaped indictment, that Haldeman had told him "what a good job Dean had done."

—Nixon said FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover once told him bugging had been used against him in his 1968 campaign "and Nixon said that sometime in the future they would have to use it to their advantage."

—The President said one of his assistants should see that a planned House investigation of Watergate "didn't get out of hand."

—Nixon asked that "tax audits be turned off on friends of his."

Bees

Fred Karigan, 1842 South Beacon, is an amateur beekeeper and just happened to be in the market for another swarm of bees. Although he wasn't able to get there until about 6 p.m., he quickly took care of the problem with little more than a brush and a crate.

Mrs. Wagner said Karigan had netting over his head, a long sleeve shirt and gloves, and he tied his pantscuffs closed.

"Actually, they're not too dangerous when they're swarming," Karigan told The Democrat-Capital. "They fill themselves with honey (before swarming) and they're not too hard to get along with when they're full." He noted that he didn't get stung while de-beeing the car.

Karigan said his brother is planning to get into beekeeping at his home in Kansas. The swarm he took from the Wagners' VW along with another hive-full will start that apiary, Karigan said.

Karigan noted the swarm, of only average size, could have come from as far away as two miles or as close as under 100 yards. He said it was the first time he'd ever seen them swarm in a car but added a swarm stopped in a tree near the Pettis County Courthouse a few years ago.

"There are still bees in my car," Mrs. Wagner said Saturday night. "I'm hoping they're gone (in the morning) but in the meantime we're not going to be driving it."

"Next time I won't tell him to roll the windows down."

Central Missouri Amateur Radio Club Has Field Day

The Central Missouri Amateur Radio Club held its 37th annual field day starting Saturday afternoon at the Missouri State Fair campgrounds.

Members from the club set up equipment to contact other clubs across the nation. All were making a 24-hour test of emergency portable power units. During disaster periods amateur clubs are often the only means of communication.

Jim Keck, 2310 First Street Terrace, a member of the local club said the amateur club at Joplin acted for some 13 hours during this spring's tornado disaster there. The club transmitted emergency messages as normal power lines were down.

Keck said the local club made about 275 contacts last year under stormy weather conditions far worse than Saturday's ideal transmitting conditions.

The club functions as a member of the American Radio Relay League and has about 25 members including "hams" in Marshall, Otterville, Mora and Sweet Springs.

Keck said the club owns the portable generator but members own their individual transmitters and receivers. "Our capabilities are unlimited," he said. "We have so many bands different we can work on."

Although the club was transmitting at below 200 watts Saturday, Keck pointed out that "hams" have the power to reach into many foreign countries.

He said most "hams" partake in a tradition of sending post card verifications to contacts. Most try to personalize their cards by using bright colors or having their picture printed on them. "Some of the lithographics are really beautiful," he said. "It's a treasured thing because you have verification you talked to a man 5,000 miles away."

Some well-known personalities own or operate "ham" units, Keck said, including Arthur Godfrey, and Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Question Answer

A very dear friend of mine died recently. I am told his property will escheat to the State. What does this mean?

Your friend evidently has neither a will nor any known family. All of his real and personal property, therefore, is essentially ownerless and will revert to the State for the common good. The State will hold the property in safekeeping for several years just in case any heirs are located. If heirs do turn up the escheated property will be released to them. To a greater or lesser extent all states practice escheat and look to these laws for revenue.

A current, valid will lodged in a place where it cannot be lost or destroyed is the only real assurance anyone without a family can have that his property will not escheat to the State.

Ozark Decision Expected

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A decision is not expected until at least Monday on a request by strikebound Ozark Air Lines that a federal court order be issued requiring pilots to cross the picket lines of mechanics and permit the airline to resume limited service.

Judge James H. Meredith of U.S. District Court here took the request under advisement Friday after spending nearly the entire day with lawyers for the airline and the Air Line Pilots Association, both in open court and in his chambers.

"In the meantime, I've urged this union and Ozark to go talk to the mechanics and try very hard to get the thing settled this weekend," Meredith said late Friday.

Formal negotiations to end the 66-day strike by the 560-member Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association broke off Thursday night in Washington, and no further talks are planned.

"They were very close," a spokesman for the National Mediation Board said following the breakdown in talks, "but it blew up."

The pilots association notified Ozark June 14 that senior pilots would not cross picket lines to fly the proposed limited schedule, which would have gone into effect Thursday. Ozark then asked Meredith for the court order requiring the pilots to fly.

An Ozark spokesman said Friday that the limited service to nine cities in Missouri and Illinois could begin by midweek if the judge issued a decision Monday.

At the court hearing, the only witness called by the pilots was John J. O'Donnell, the president of ALPA. Ozark attorneys objected to most questions asked him, contending he could offer nothing more than opinions.

O'Donnell testified that past experience showed resumption of limited service would serve only to lengthen the strike. He said the pilots were refusing to cross picket lines because they did not want to "let either the airline or the mechanics union use us to break the other side."

A. Fred Timmerman, city manager of Peoria, Ill., and one of two witnesses called by Ozark, said the strike had hurt business in his city, one of 13 served exclusively by Ozark. He said people were reluctant to use ground transportation.

The mechanics went on strike April 19, more than a year after their old contract had expired. AMFA officials said the dispute centers around wages, pension benefits and the length of the new contract.

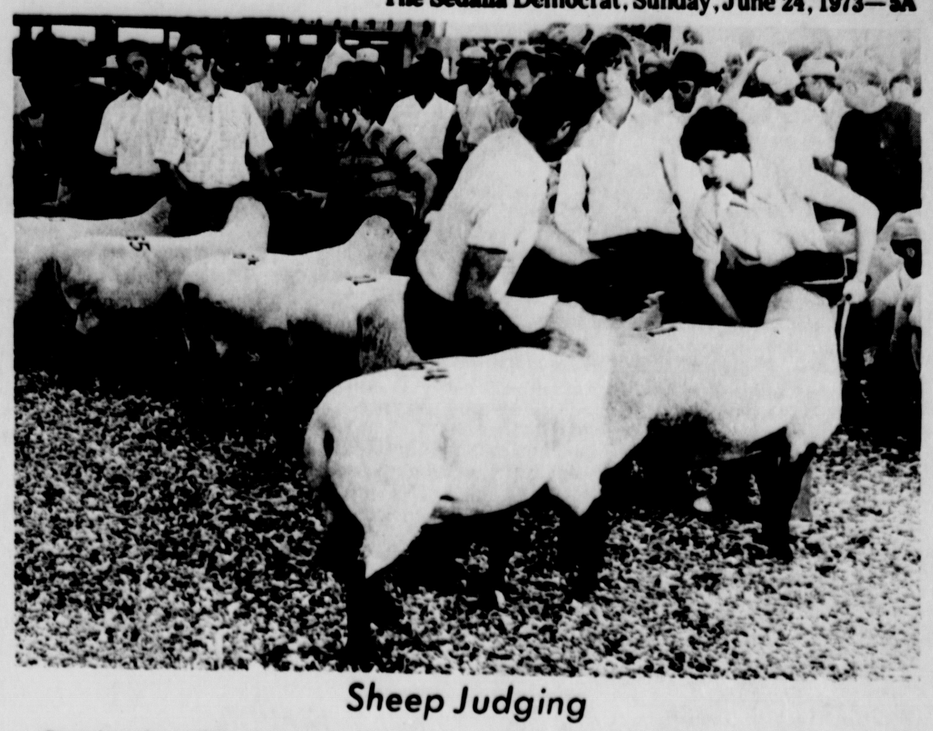

Under the old pact, mechanics made $6.02 an hour. The union has been demanding an hourly wage of $6.82 with premium pay for mechanics holding special licenses while the company's last reported offer was $6.80 without the premium.

Only One Person Is At Large

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The Wyandotte County district attorney's office announced the arrest of two more persons sought on felony warrants Friday, leaving only one of 11 persons named in warrants still at large.

Local and state authorities have been conducting an investigation of alleged vice here at the same time that a federal grand jury has been probing illegal activities in the area.

The two arrested were identified as William Albert Dicker, 21, and Larry William Chushuk, 37, both of Kansas City, Kan. They were charged with operating a gambling establishment.

The 11 warrants were issued earlier this week and eight persons were arrested Thursday. The federal grand jury also returned nine indictments Thursday in connection with the vice probe.

Seven of the nine persons named in the federal indictments appeared for bond hearings Friday and were ordered to report to U.S. District Court in Kansas City, Kan., July 2 for an omnibus hearing. Two remained at large.

Peace Still Big Goal For Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Outlining his activities as spiritual head of the Roman Catholic church, Pope Paul VI says he will continue as an "active promoter of peace."

The Pope addressed an audience of Vatican cardinals who called on him on Friday to wish him well for the feast day Sunday of his namesake saint, St. John the Baptist. The pontiff's given name is Giovanni Battista Montini.

In a 4,000-word speech, Pope Paul noted that priests "are still passing through a period of uneasiness, suffering and disorientation" and declared: "We must make a fresh effort to help them overcome this phase."

He also reiterated his confidence in the world's youth "in spite of conflicting appearances and certain vain and rebellious attitudes."

Injuries Are Fatal

ST. LOUIS (AP) — William Vanderbilt, 56, hit by a car as he crossed a street near his home here June 11, died Friday from injuries he received in the accident, police said.

The driver of the car was not charged, police said.

Refuses Try To Extradite Robert Vesco

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — A Costa Rican federal judge has refused to extradite financier Robert L. Vesco to the United States to face charges of fraud and obstructing justice.

Vesco was indicted in connection with a secret contribution to the Nixon re-election campaign.

The United States can appeal to the Costa Rican Supreme Court Friday's decision of Judge Atilio Vizenso to reject the extradition request.

But Vesco, a 37-year-old millionaire who maintains a home in New Jersey, is believed to be in the Bahamas rather than Costa Rica. He has homes in both countries and has not been seen in Costa Rica since June 3, shortly after he was indicted by a U.S. District Court in New York City.

Vesco is accused of obstructing justice by making a secret $200,000 contribution to the Nixon campaign in hopes of halting a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation into his financial dealings.

Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans and New Jersey Republican leader Harry Sears were indicted in the same case and pleaded innocent.

Says U.S. Firms Are Draining Funds

OTTAWA (AP) — United States-owned companies are helping drain $270,080 an hour from Canada, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, a spokesman for the Committee for an Independent Canada has told the Commons Finance Committee.

Toronto businessman Jim Conrad said that money, $2.36 billion last year, represented the net flow of capital to the United States from Canada last year and shows that Canada does not need foreign capital for development.

The net outflow resulted from fees, royalties, interest payments, dividends and profits, plus investment by Americans into Canada and Canadians into the U.S.

Conspiracy Guilty Plea Is Received

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Edward Staffire, 25, of Edwardsville, Ill., has pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court here to two charges of conspiracy to sell cocaine.

Staffire was one of nine persons recently indicted by federal grand juries in St. Louis and Springfield, Ill., following what federal agents called the break-up of a major cocaine sales operation in the St. Louis area.

Tax Reform Revival Is Anticipated

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liberal Democrats will try to revive the moribund tax reform issue when the Senate debates a debt limit extension bill this week but their chances appear to be poor.

Four senators announced they would submit amendments to the bill designed to raise an additional $1 billion a year in revenue and promote equity in the tax code.

The senators are Birch Bayh of Indiana, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin. They said adoption of the amendments would amount to "a down-payment on major tax reform."

Tax reform developed into a major issue in the 1972 presidential campaign but it has drawn progressively less attention as the 1973 congressional session has moved along.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., conducted extensive hearings on the subject in his Ways and Means Committee and the administration submitted some relatively mild proposals to raise about $600 million through tax changes.

But Mills has shelved the issue at President Nixon's request to take up international trade legislation.

Mills now says he hopes to write a bill and pass it through the House before the 1973 session ends.

But it is evident the Senate Finance Committee cannot even get to it until 1974.

For this reason, the four Democratic senators said they would seize on the debt limit measure as a vehicle to try to accomplish something in the area of tax changes this year.

The debt limit extension must be enacted by the end of this week. Otherwise the government technically would be unable to meet its financial obligations.

The senators said the $1 billion could be used to finance additional social programs which the administration is seeking to cut back or eliminate, or to add to federal revenues and thus fight inflation.

One of their amendments would repeal the special accelerated depreciation for business enacted in 1971 as a move to fight an economic downturn then in effect.

The other would beef up the minimum tax enacted in 1969 as part of the Tax Reform law and designed to make sure that wealthy persons pay some tax even though they may have been escaping altogether.

The senators contend the accelerated depreciation no longer is needed because business investment now is very strong and corporate profits are booming.

The minimum tax, they contend, has been a big disappointment. It was estimated to yield $590 million from individuals in 1970 but in fact produced only $117 million.

The senators' amendment would modify the 1969 minimum tax provision to knock out the deduction now allowed for other federal taxes paid.

As the law now stands, the minimum tax applies at a 10 per cent rate to most income now sheltered from taxes except that the first $30,000 of such income is exempt.

Gunfighter Pose From Brezhnev

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Glancing out a window of President Nixon's jetliner, Leonid I. Brezhnev saw for the first time the vast expanse of America's rugged West.

The spectacular view of the wide open spaces—plus Nixon's mention of actor John Wayne—inspired the general secretary of the Soviet Communist party to give his imitation of a gunfighter, Western style.

He tucked his hands in his belt, then flashed them upward and out, thumbs cocked and index fingers pointing at Nixon across the table.

Nixon smiled, then chuckled—as he has a dozen times publicly during a week of summit talks—at Brezhnev's animated good humor.

Reporters and photographers who flew on the presidential jet from the capital to the Western White House witnessed Brezhnev's quick-draw when they were invited into the President's compartment.

The plane circled and dipped to within 1,400 feet of the top of Grand Canyon. The world's two most powerful men looked down on red-hued gorges crested by green pines. There was this exchange:

Nixon: "You thought it was a good scene, huh?"

Brezhnev: "It is certainly very beautiful, Mr. President. Very beautiful indeed. But another thought comes to mind—it is a pity that it is so barren. But all countries have such places. Are there any inhabited areas?"

Nixon: "Many people like to live on the desert."

Brezhnev: "I've seen many pictures of this in the newsreels and also in the cowboy movies."

Nixon: "Yes, John Wayne."

The translator who had been hovering between the two leaders didn't need to translate Nixon's last phrase.

Brezhnev must have understood because his imitation of a gunfighter came instantly.

Kansans Getting Some Fuel

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — State officials continued their effort to get enough fuel for Kansas Friday, with some indications of success.

Gov. Robert Docking said Friday night he had received a call from John Connally, presidential adviser, in which Connally said he would arrange a meeting between Robert Robel, the chairman of the Governor's Advisory Council on Energy and Natural Resources, and William E. Simon, a deputy treasury secretary who is chairman of the Oil Policy Committee.

Docking had requested such a meeting in a telegram Friday. He also wrote to President Nixon, again urging the President to use his power to establish mandatory fuel allocations.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said Friday a representative of the U.S. Office of Oil and Gas would come to Kansas Tuesday to analyze farmers' needs and supervise allocation of oil products. Dole said the man, Jerry Newcomb, would work at the Manhattan office of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Newcomb is originally from Garden City, Kan., and is a graduate of Kansas State University.

Docking's office also said Friday Quality Oil Co. of Topeka had offered 13,000 gallons of fuel for areas where the supply is drying up and threatening the wheat harvest.

No one was held in the incident, police said.

Concorde Construction To Go Ahead

LONDON (AP) — The British Aircraft Corp. says development of the British-French Concorde supersonic jetliner will proceed even though costs are up again and firm orders remain for only nine planes.

Total development costs for the Concorde have risen almost $240 million to $2.6 billion, Aerospace Minister Michael Heseltine told the House of Commons on Friday. The additions are for wage and price rises, changes in currency exchange rates and revised certification data, he said.

A number of improvements, especially noise reduction, are under study, and these would boost costs further, Heseltine said.

The Concorde was discussed in Parliament following disclosures that 58 purchase options have been canceled, leaving firm orders only for five planes from British Overseas Airways Corp. and four from Air France—both government airlines.

The builders still have preliminary purchase agreements, not requiring deposits, with Iran for three Concordes and with mainland China for two.

Escape Could Have Been Tried

By ROBERT C. COOPER
Associated Press Writer

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two scientists trapped in a midget research submarine died after deciding against attempting a 351-foot swim to the ocean's surface, say the two men who survived the ordeal.

The two survivors of last weekend's minisub tragedy said Clayton Link and Albert Stover had equipment in the sub's rear chamber that would have allowed a try at a record-breaking free ascent. But they elected to wait on a rescue attempt by Navy divers and were dead of carbon dioxide poisoning when the sub was freed from its 31-hour entrapment.

"They decided they didn't want to lock out," said Archibald "Jock" Menzies, one of the two survivors. "We agreed to wait for the Navy divers."

Menzies, 30, and Robert Meek, 27, the other survivor, spoke with newsmen on Friday after joint funeral services for Link, 31, and Stover, 51.

Link, the son of millionaire inventor Edwin Link, and Stover, an expert on submarine safety, died about noon Monday, several hours before their trapped minisub was freed from a scuttled World War II destroyer about 20 miles off Key West.

The minisub was finally freed from cables dangling from the sunken ship by a television-guided grappling hook.

The four men aboard the Sea Link were investigating sea life around the destroyer, which had been scuttled to form an artificial reef.

Menzies said the rear "lock out" chamber of the tiny sub could have been pressurized to allow the two men to leave the vessel with breathing equipment. But no diver ever has made a free ascent from below 306 feet, and Link and Stover elected not to attempt it, Menzies said.

Runway Nears Completion

This massive piece of equipment is known as a CMI electronic machine and is one of the many types of construction equipment currently being used to build the new runway at the Sedalia Memorial Airport. The machine is used to remove excess baserock prior to pouring the concrete. The runway will be 5,000 feet long and 100 feet wide and will run in a north-south direction. A spokesman for Howard Construction Co., said the runway should be finished sometime in August, weather permitting. The operator of the CMI is Rolla Waisner, 1400 North Missouri.

Lending Rate Hike May Not Help

By DEBORAH M. RANKIN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Economists say the recent sharp rise in the prime lending rate on corporate loans probably won't have much of an immediate effect on cooling inflation.

But, they say, it probably won't lead to a repeat of the credit crunch that accompanied the key interest rate's climb to historic highs in 1969-70.

The prime minimum borrowing fee banks charge on loans to their most credit-worthy corporate customers has been raised seven times this year and now stands at 7¾ per cent. That's uncomfortably close to the peak of 8½ per cent reached during the 69-70 crunch.

But even though it's getting costlier to obtain loan funds, economists think a return to the tight money situation of a few years ago is unlikely.

Reasons for reaching this conclusion differ, but economists basically believe there'll be enough money to go around even if the cost of borrowing it may rise steeply in the next few months.

"You may get interest rates rising to '69 levels but won't have the same situation of a businessman unable to obtain money at any price," remarked an economist. "The money is there."

On Friday the nation's banks, including the giant Bank of America in California, boosted the prime rate one-quarter of a percentage point. The prime rate is a pivotal rate. The borrowing fees banks charge on other loans, such as auto loans, are linked to it although there is a six to eight-month lag.

Generally, a hike in the prime rate is viewed as anti-inflationary because it tends to inhibit the growth of bank credit, the major factor in economic expansion.

But many economists say this is not the case currently.

For one thing they feel the Federal Reserve Board, which acts as the nation's money manager, has allowed the country's money supply to expand so rapidly that higher interest rates won't deflate the economy.

Economists say the second reason a higher prime won't cool inflation quickly is that demand for goods and services is so great now that business finds it profitable to borrow for expansion — even at steadily increasing interest rates.

The prime hit a low of 4½ per cent early last year, when the board was trying to coax the nation out of a recession by making it easy for business to borrow. It has been crawling slowly upward since, with the increases accelerating in recent months.

Jury Recalls Seven Persons

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A federal grand jury here has re-indicted seven Rolla, Mo., residents on charges of dealing in stolen explosives and firearms.

No arraignment date was set on the indictment, returned Thursday, which supersedes indictments by a federal grand jury last month against the same defendants.

A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office said the new indictment combined charges against the defendants and detailed specific cases where they allegedly sold stolen firearms, dynamite and blasting caps to federal undercover agents.

Charged with conspiracy to engage in the illegal sale of firearms were Marvin R. Sharp, 45; Betty J. Hodges, 44; Curt C. Overshon, 26, and John W. Overshon, 37.

Charged with conspiracy to conceal and sell stolen explosive material were Rodney C. Lewis, 26; Pamela J. Campbell, 24; Jessie L. Hussey, 27, Sharp and Miss Hodges.

The seven were arrested late last month following a five-month investigation by federal undercover agents.

Without the great sanctuary of the Arctic, with its relatively undisturbed breeding grounds, many species of migratory birds could not survive.

More People Serious About UFO's

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The serious effort to gather accurate information about UFO's (unidentified flying objects) in the Midwest continues. And one leader in the effort says more and more people are becoming serious about UFO sightings.

"It used to be that 30 to 40 per cent of the sightings could be classed as ding-a-ling or screwball," says John F. Schuessler of the St. Louis suburb of O'Fallon, "but today I would put these reports at only about two per cent of the total we receive."

Schuessler is deputy director of a group known as MUFON, for Midwest UFO Network. The group has members in 26 states and attempts to trace reports of UFO sightings in an effort to learn the source of the event. It's a job the Air Force tried for years but abandoned in 1969, saying a further effort could not be justified on grounds of science or national security.

Schuessler, an engineer and scientist at McDonnell-Douglas Corporation near St. Louis, says of his inquiries, "It's not unlike what a detective would do. We check various explanations for sightings and sometimes we check on the people reporting them, to make sure it's not a hoax."

He says the group takes care to guard the privacy of persons who cooperate, saying "We don't throw people's names around if they see a UFO."

Law enforcement agencies, which find they seldom can devote time and resources to following up UFO reports, routinely refer callers to MUFON, which has distributed "UFO Alert Cards" to police stations, broadcast stations and other agencies.

It's a busy hobby. "We've been chasing our tail this spring," Schuessler says. Considerable publicity was generated by multiple reports of sightings around Piedmont in southeast Missouri, but Schuessler says there have been several good reports since then requiring investigation.

On Friday night June 15 he says a group of 14 people ranging in age from four to about 60 saw what he calls "the light in the sky" type of UFO in south St. Louis. He says it may have been a police helicopter and the investigation is continuing.

Three nights earlier he says a postal clerk in St. Charles, a community just northwest of St. Louis, was in his yard with his family when they saw a lighted object making erratic movements.

Schuessler describes these reports as "serious reports from serious people."

He says the group is also working on a May 30 incident when a heavy equipment operator north of St. Louis saw two gray objects fly together, as if in formation, just below a layer of low clouds. Unlike many other sightings, Schuessler says this one was during daylight hours and the man could verify the objects were not typical aircraft.

Schuessler says the Piedmont craze started with two good reports but soon turned into a case where "everyone was seeing something in the sky."

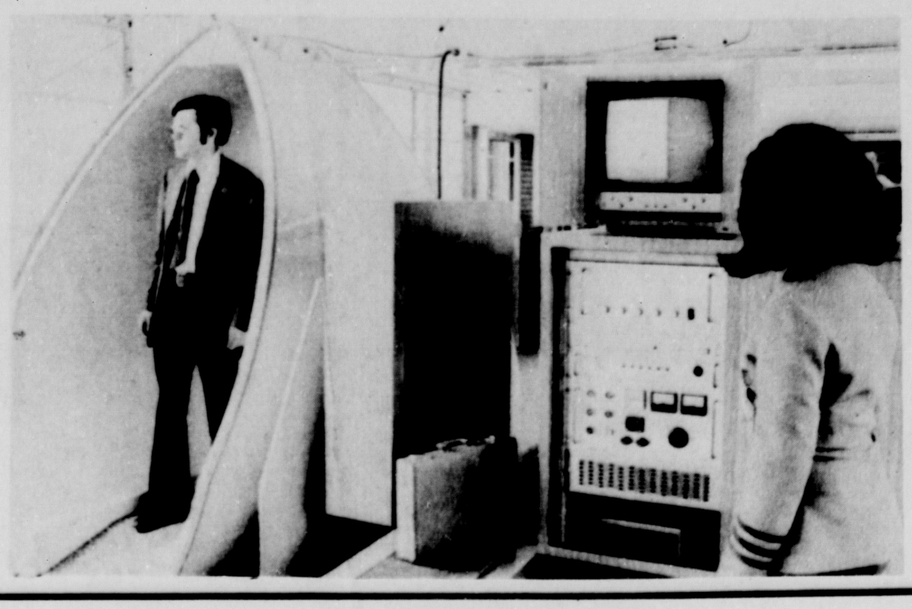

He said one good report involved a coach driving a car full of ballplayers returning from a game. They reported that a UFO followed them along the road and they first thought it was an aircraft in trouble. The other "good report" involved a pilot who said he aborted an approach to the airport at Farmington, Mo., because he feared a midair collision with an object.

Schuessler says MUFON's work has found "no good ground evidence" for the UFO's in southeast Missouri and southern Illinois.

He says a physics professor at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau has consented to do some field work this summer in an effort to find UFO-related radiation or other data.

He says this kind of effort is indicative of what MUFON finds. He says well-educated people are becoming less skeptical and more willing to address themselves to the fact that a large percentage of sightings are never identified or explained.

The group publishes a monthly newsletter, edited by Mrs. Norma Short, a former newspaperwoman who lives at Stover, Mo. He says it circulates to about 500 subscribers.

Court's Ruling On Director Is Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals has refused to suspend a lower court ruling barring Howard W. Phillips from serving as acting director of the government's antipoverty agency.

The government had asked that Phillips be restored to his office pending appeal of the June 11 ruling by U.S. District Judge William B. Jones. Jones ruled Phillips had been serving unlawfully as acting director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Steven Eilperin, the Justice Department lawyer who argued for the suspension, commented Friday, "It doesn't look as if we have a very large chance of success" on the appeal.

In denying the motion, the appeals court said it doesn't believe the government "has shown sufficient likelihood of success on the merits to warrant a stay."

Phillips was appointed acting director of OEO, which is being dismantled, Jan. 29. His name was never submitted to the Senate for confirmation.

The three-judge appeals panel said the Constitution "unequivocally requires an officer of the United States to be confirmed by the Senate unless different provision is made by congressional statute." The panel said the government has not demonstrated that the court "is likely to hold that the President was entitled to hold Mr. Phillips in office for a 4½ month period without any nomination."

Summer Not All That Pleasant

By PETER WEAVER

Ah, the summer scene! We have swimming, campfires, hikes and all those beautiful flowers and trees.

But summer can quickly turn into a gloomy scene if you don't watch out. For instance, how about sunburn, bee stings and plants that poison? Let's take these summer uglies one at a time:

✔ Burns. The American Pharmaceutical Assn. says the best remedy for minor burns from cookout fires or the sun is cold water. Just immerse the burned area in cold water or cover with towels soaked in cold water until the pain goes away. An aspirin might also help sooth.

Putting sprays or ointments on the burn won't do much good and, says APA, might even make things worse. Serious burns that deeply damage the skin over a good percentage of the body need immediate medical care. Wrap the victim in clean sheets and a blanket and deliver to the nearest hospital.

✔ Stings. A good number of people, especially those who have allergy tendencies, can get violent reactions from bee, wasp and yellow jacket stings. If a bee stings, immediately scrape or flick the stinger away with your fingernail. Don't try to squeeze the stinger with your fingers. If just pumps in more poison. Wasps and yellow jackets don't release stingers and should be quickly shooed away or squashed.

Putting ice on the sting area helps ease the pain and also slows the absorption of venom. Persons who suffer severe reactions to insect stings should carry an emergency kit (contains adrenalin and instructions for using a tourniquet to localize the venom). Your doctor can prescribe the kit and can advise on the possibility of desensitization shots.

Perfumes, hair spray, hair tonic, suntan lotions and other cosmetics should be avoided outdoors because they can attract bees and wasps. It's also a good idea to avoid trash cans, sugary soft drinks, popsicles and other outdoor food sources that attract stinging insects. Insect repellents are helpful and the best ones contain diethyltoluamide.

You can get a most useful booklet, "Insect Stings," by sending 25 cents to: Allergy Foundation of America, 801 Second Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

✔ Poison plants. More than 700 plants and trees have twigs or foliage that can poison. Some are swiftly fatal. For example, the oleander bush releases a deadly heart stimulant that can kill a child. Rhubarb, tomatoes and potatoes are okay to eat but their leaves can cause severe nerve and stomach disorders. The rhubarb leaf can be fatal if eaten.

The prettier the flower or tree, the more likely it will contain poison. Twigs and leaves of the wild or cultivated cherry tree release cyanide when eaten. Peach tree foliage releases hydrocyanic acid. Laurel, rhododendron, azaleas and yew are all potential killers if you eat the berries or foliage.

The list goes on and on. The best thing to do is advise children not to put twigs, flowers, leaves or berries in their mouths. Even cooking a hot dog on a poisonous twig can fell you. Every home should have the booklet, "Plants That Poison," which lists and describes all sorts of vegetation to stay away from. You can get a free copy by writing: Rich-Hansen, Ciba-Geigy Corp., P.O. Box 11422, Greensboro, N.C. 27409.

Poison ivy, oak and sumac won't kill you but they can make for an itchy summer. Be able to recognize and stay away from these plants. Destroy any around your yard (don't burn; it spreads the poison).

For relief from poison ivy, oak and sumac dermatitis, skin doctors say the best bet is cold-water baths and plain calamine lotion. Fancy, anasthetic spray preparations could make things worse.

Unusual Accident Kills Young Girl

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A 7-year-old girl who had suffered severe head injuries earlier this week when her hair became entangled in the motor of a minibike died Friday at Research Medical Center.

Wendy M. Barnett, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Barnett of Garden City, Mo., in Cass County south of Kansas City, suffered a skull fracture, concussion and severe lacerations in the accident.

She was riding the minibike with her brother when her hair became caught in the motor and she was pulled to the ground.

Drowning Case Leads To Charges

SALAINA, Kan. (AP) — A preliminary hearing has been set for July 6 for Larry Warford, 20, Holton, Kan., on charges stemming from the drowning of a 15-year-old girl at a lake in Salina.

Warford was charged with endangering a minor child and furnishing intoxicants to a minor.

Officers said the girl, Cathy Sue Ferguson of Salina, was reported missing at Indian Rock Park about 3:20 a.m. Friday. Her body was recovered about 5 a.m.

Boy Is Thrown From Moving Truck; Dies

ANNAPOLIS, Mo. (AP) — A 14-year-old boy was killed Friday when he was thrown from the back of a truck and then was hit by a car coming from the opposite direction.

The highway patrol identified the victim as Peter Andrew King of Annapolis, a small community in Iron County in southeast Missouri.

The patrol said King was riding in the back of a truck driven by his mother, Patricia King. The patrol said the truck crossed the center line and then swerved to the right to avoid an oncoming car.

Accidental Hanging

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A four-year-old boy apparently became entangled in a rope while climbing a tree in his back yard Friday and hanged himself.

Police identified the youth as Anthony Moore, the son of Mrs. Eva Moore (of 3008 College). His brother and cousin found him.

Seek Way To Shield Gas Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Power Commission has agreed to give the Senate data on natural gas reserves while hinting to producers they might seek a court order forbidding release of the information.

The commission voted unanimously Friday to comply with a subpoena from the Senate antitrust subcommittee headed by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich. The FPC said it sent telegrams to gas producers advising them it would deliver the data to the subcommittee by 10 a.m. Tuesday unless blocked by an appropriate court order.

Involved is basic data submitted on a confidential basis by gas producing companies for an FPC study of natural gas reserves.

The recently-released study indicated gas reserves were at least as low and probably lower than the estimates provided by the industry itself.

But when Hart asked to see the original data, an employe of the Bureau of Natural Gas attempted to destroy it, according to the FPC. The data was saved after it had been ripped in half but before it could be fed into an incinerator.

After reconstructing the material, the FPC said last week it found no significant discrepancies between the original data and the results reported in the summary study. But Hart then subpoened the data.

Southeastern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan experience the driest conditions on the Canadian prairies.

Visions of Dan: Jesus at Center of Controversy

EDITOR'S NOTE: There has been much news recently about youths who have taken up with religious sects and the attempts of parents to get them back. The following article looks at one such family.

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer

FARMINGTON, Conn. (AP) — For Eugene and Marie Voll the struggle to reclaim their son Dan ended on a New York street, with police sirens and pistols and hands reaching for the sky.

Eugene Voll, 45, junior high principal, Lutheran Sunday School teacher, wrestling on the sidewalk with his 20-year-old. Marie Voll, 45, mother of four younger children, poised at the wheel of a rented car, ready to hit the gas and speed them all home to Connecticut.

It's a spectacle of the 70s.

Eugene and Marie, pillars of the respectable life, out on a kidnap caper to free Dan from the clutches of what they feel is modern evil: a religious sect which preaches the Gospel and speaks in tongues and ... has hold of the boy's mind.

And Dan Voll, tall, slender, sandy-haired Yale dropout, kicking and punching and screaming about his Right to lead his own life and why don't you let me alone.

"This is a nightmare. This can't be happening to me," is how Eugene Voll remembers it.

"I've never heard him scream like that in such utter terror," said Mrs. Voll. "We never used force or violence on him before. It's given me bad dreams."

The police interceded that night four months ago and sent the Volls home. They're back in Farmington now, mixing the good memories and the bad dreams, hoping that Dan will come home again. And they don't want to see the cops again.

"I've told him, 'there's no way we're going to try to get you again. You've had your chance,'" said Mrs. Voll.

Dan Voll, now 21, is working part time at the New York University Medical Center and is back with his friends at the New Testament Missionary Fellowship.

"I'm just living the way I want to," he said. "My parents resent it because I'm not doing it the Lutheran way. I don't have any disagreement with what they believe. Why can't they let me have the same right?"

In a nutshell, that's the Volls' story. It's not unique. The so-called kidnap attempts are headlines these days and they are becoming more and more frequent. In the 60s parents saw drugs and free love eating at the kids' minds. In the 70s for some, it's Jesus. On the surface it's near absurdity, something unexplainable. Until you hear the arguments. The language is the same: individual rights and doing your own thing, with words like responsibility and obedience.

Ask why?

Look at people's vision of Dan Voll.

Farmington, Conn. Affluence 100 miles from New York. A picturebook community. Goodness. Young people go to Farmington High and then on to a good college. Good jobs, then a proper marriage. Not everybody, of course. Some hit the skids for a while, into juice, a little dope, finding themselves.

But no one goes the way of Dan Voll.

Jesus!

The Volls live in a two-story, beige colonial. It's the type of home magazines mean when they say "comfortable."

The Volls' spacious home has become the center of a campaign against the New Testament group. And in a barrage of national news stories, the couple has exchanged harsh accusations with their son. The result has been flood of calls and letters from parents around the country who want their advice in getting children out of religious groups. And they are trying to rally support for Ted Patrick, the man who Dan alleges engineered the abduction and who has been charged with assault in the case.

Patrick, 43, a former California state government employe, has moved across the country over the past six months, helping more than 100 sets of parents abduct and "deprogram" their children from various religious sects.

Claiming the youths have already been "brainwashed" or "psychologically kidnaped" by the groups, Patrick and the parents spirit them away, often by force, and put them through a deprogramming room.

The abductions have alarmed civil libertarians, however, who claim Patrick and the parents have violated constitutional rights of religious liberty, freedom of association and free movement.

But the charges and cries of alarm have failed to deter hundreds of worried parents, who deluge the Volls with pleas for help.

And then the visions:

Mrs. Voll flipping through a photograph album to a picture of 2-year-old Danny with his arm locked around his baby sister, Betsy.

"This is typical," she said. "When Betsy was 1, she used to try to run into the street. I told Danny to watch her. I used to hear her screaming and run out to find Danny pulling on her with all his might to keep her from running off. Even at that age, he accepted responsibility."

She turns to other snapshots of Dan — the chunky towhead on his bike, playing ball, pumping water, clowning with his sisters.

"Some day, I hope he'll recall all those experiences," Voll said. "Right now, he doesn't seem to remember them.

"We always felt you should help a child be independent, be his own person. Danny was a very independent person. We thought that if there was any child ready to go off to school, it was Dan."

If Dan was a model son, the Volls seemed a model family to neighbors.

"This kid came from the best background there ever was," said Jeannette Swietlicki, the next door neighbor. "It's so sickening what's happened to him.

"They're a terrific family. I've never heard that woman yelling at her children. She never loses her temper. The kids play outside all the time and I've not once heard them scream at each other."

And Mrs. Switlicki on the Volls: "They're very religious. They don't entertain, except for groups of kids from the church. I've only seen them at one cocktail party, and they didn't drink. They seem very devoted to their children and spend most of their time at home."

"You know," she went on, "it's too bad they didn't get him. You just can't forget your children. If my son was involved in that, I'd do it, too."

At Farmington High School, Dan Voll is remembered: outstanding athlete, student and leader. Teachers and friends discuss him in all the terms of the Boy Scout code.

"He had to be the hardest worker I've ever seen," said Ted Orzach, the track coach who drove the youth home every night for four years. "He wasn't a natural runner. But he made himself one through determination and the desire to be a winner.

"My relationship with Danny was that of a friend. I loved that kid. I used to hope that my kid would be the same type of boy Danny Voll was. And yet I can't blame Gene Voll for what he did. I might have done the same."

The last time Orzach saw Dan was Thanksgiving, 1970, while he was on vacation from Yale.

"He told me he had quit the cross-country team to devote his whole time to God. I tried to convey to him that maybe he wasn't using his talent to the fullest extent. But he no longer had an open mind like he used to. He turned me off, tuned me out.

"I'm hoping deep down that Danny will solve his own problems in his own way and come back to our way of life. Heaven knows, it's not always the best way of life. It can be cruel."

But Orzach paused and added: "Who am I to say that Dan's life is not right? Maybe he feels he's not wasting his life."

Kathy Blanchard, a close friend in high school who has known Dan Voll since seventh grade, remembers him as "one of the nicest kids you could imagine."

"He went to all the social things — dances and games — but he didn't do a lot of wild things other kids did, like drinking with guys and racing in cars. "I respected him for his strong religious beliefs."

Miss Blanchard said she noticed that Dan "was getting more and more into religion" in his senior year.

"It didn't surprise me to find out that he had gotten into that group," she said. "The Lutheran religion wasn't giving him answers. I wonder if he didn't need to have answers to all his questions, which this group seems to provide. He seemed to have a need for structure."

Rick Nash, who lived across the hall from Dan in their freshman year, says of Voll: "When he came, he was pretty normal — on the track team and stuff. But then he got involved in prayer meetings and he closed his mind to any criticism or new ideas.

"I remember him getting into arguments with kids, saying that unless they believed what he believed in, they were damned to hell. He would get violently angry if you disagreed with him.

"When he and his friends used to go into the dining hall and preach, they were made fun of. People tended to stay away from them."

Mark Berner, a sophomore at Yale, belonged to the New Testament group while a freshman. He quit three months after he joined.

"I gradually began to cut myself off from friends," he said. "They put pressure on me to conform to their standards — activities, clothes, courses, the way I spent my free time. But they put it in a positive context. They say, 'If you want to serve God, you'll want to do it.'

"It's just like they never say 'Leave your family.' They frame it positively. 'Stay with us.'"

And Dan on himself and Eugene and Marie:

"We really couldn't talk about things," he says. "They pretty much let me go my own way. I didn't always tell them my decisions. For example, I signed the paper to go to Yale before I told them that that's where I was going."

Since the age of 7, he had wanted to be a Lutheran minister. But during his senior year in high school, he "became very dissatisfied with the Lutheran Church. Church was just a habit, a ritual.

"I was searching for a more alive Christianity. Then I came into contact in high school with a charismatic religion which involved speaking in tongues. My parents were uneasy because I was getting away from the Lutheran Church, but they never said no to me."

When he entered Yale, Dan says, he found the vital faith he was seeking in the form of the New Testament Missionary Fellowship.

"I was worried about the way kids were going at Yale. These were decent kids, but it would only be a matter of time until they got into drugs and illicit sexual relationships. Their lives were going downhill.

"I needed to have reassurance that my life was stable while others were falling apart. When I met other 'born again' Christians, we began to gather for daily prayer. I was full of enthusiasm because at last I had found something to satisfy my spiritual longing."

Dan Voll quit track early in his freshman year. He dropped out of Yale the end of his freshman year because he says his parents had written that they couldn't afford to send him there any more.

His parents deny that, saying he dropped out without any communication with them.

Dan moved down to New York, took on a part-time job and became completely involved with the fellowship.

His parents say he stopped virtually all contact with them.

"The change in personality was scary," Voll said. "He became mean, hard and cruel. We weren't able to talk to him any more. We couldn't have a rational conversation with him."

"They never point out that I reacted the way I did because of what they've said about me," said Dan. "They made all sorts of wild accusations against my beliefs on the basis of hearsay, without coming down and seeing for themselves.

"I love my parents very much. I'm very concerned about them. But they've got to realize I'm not a child any more. They've got to let me go. But my mother doesn't want to do that. This is her new mission, her crusade."

"We've tried to raise our children so they could be their own persons," his father said. "We're not trying to hold on."

And the abduction attempt:

"There was nothing legal we could do to help our son," Voll said. "There was nobody to turn to. We couldn't get help from the state attorney general, the police or the church.

"We once had a great relationship with this boy. Then he turns against us, doesn't want anything to do with the family. When he calls, he's angry and vindictive. It's so out of character."

"It's like seeing a child eating a big sucker laced with cyanide," said Mrs. Voll. "You have to take it way from him even though he wants it."

The Volls have met with Dan twice since the abduction attempt and have talked to him several times on the phone. But the wall remains.

The three say they hope for an eventual reconciliation, but they continue to accuse each of other of failure to understand their respective viewpoints.

"Both sides in this thing seem to obviously assume that their beliefs are the only ones that are correct," said Jack Morgan, a former roommate of Dan's at Yale.

"Both seem to be singularly insensitive to the point of view that people should be allowed to think what they want."

Explains

Attorney General Elliott Richardson told a news conference that there are "arguments both ways" as to whether President Nixon could be legally called to testify before a federal grand jury in the Watergate scandal. Richardson was in Chicago to address a regional conference of U.S. attorneys.

Seek Way to Aid Community

Efforts aimed at helping the Sedalia Public Library more effectively serve the local black population, the functionally illiterate and senior citizens were recommended recently by City Librarian Donald Morton in his annual report to the library board of trustees.

Specifically, Morton recommended the trustees establish an "advisory committee" from the black community, consisting of both adults and children, in an effort to "reach that segment of the community."

To serve the functionally illiterate, Morton urged the participation of the library staff in a "Community Education Program" that is now being planned. Morton also urged the establishment of a "right to read" program to combat illiteracy.

Regarding senior citizens, Morton announced that a senior citizens day, to be sponsored by the library, has been tentatively scheduled for the first part of September. In this observance, to be held in Liberty Park, the library provides transportation, entertainment and lunch for local senior citizens and also provides them the opportunity to display their handicrafts and hobbies.

Morton also reported to the board that the library building's leaking roof has been successfully repaired. He later explained that the fault was actually due to leaking gutters.

In the financial statement accompanying the report, it was stated that a total of $92,224.84 in income was derived from taxes, fines, fees, state aid and miscellaneous sources. Added to the 1972 balance, this figure reads $131,303.08. The balance at the end of the fiscal year, May 31, was $53,903.53, Morton said.

Circulation figures, reflecting useage of records, puzzles and adult and juvenile books was 114,160, a 3,701 increase over last year's figure of 110,459. The total number of films used was 341, with 1,153 total showings being recorded.

Attendance figures included in the report revealed that 51,997 children and 6,780 adults attended film showings, with 2,785 youngsters attending the children's story hour during the past year.

Kirkpatrick Girls State Speaker

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Youths between 18 and 21 will have to conduct themselves so the public will realize they are entitled to full rights, Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick told a Girls State meeting Friday night.

Winning public support for a proposal to give 18-year-olds full rights "will take more than just expressing your own opinion," he said of a bill that was defeated in the final hours of the legislative session last week.

Melinda Glaspy of Clinton was elected governor of Girls State on the Federalist ticket.

Other winners were Karla Keisner of Joplin, lieutenant governor; Dawn Jones of Jefferson City, attorney general; Sue Stewart of Cuba, secretary of state; Cindy Jones of Kirkwood, state treasurer, and Ginger McGee of DeSoto, state auditor.

Elected supreme court justices were Fran Tobin of Burlington Junction, Willetta James of Sedalia, Leanne DeShong of Raytown, Mary Margaret Shine of Kansas City, Kathy Libby of LaClede, Kathy Toeniskoetter of Washington and Melissa Thompson of Mound City.

Accident Is Fatal

HIGGINSVILLE, Mo. (AP) — A Mayview, Mo., man was killed Friday afternoon when his car went out of control and struck a bridge abutment on Missouri 13 just south of Interstate 70, about seven miles south of here.

The highway patrol identified the victim as Virgil Truman Clouse, 49.

From $100 to $10 Million Is Raiser's Target

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Lewis was 11 when he did his first fund-raising benefit. He wrote and appeared in a 90-minute school comedy show that he estimates raised about $100 for the Red Cross.

He'll be shooting for $10 million on Sept. 2 when he starts a nationally televised 20-hour benefit that is the latest round in what he calls "this almost psychotic drive of mine to beat this s.o.b."

The s.o.b. is muscular dystrophy, a variety of hereditary diseases that primiarily afflict the very young. It's characterized by progressive weakness caused by degenerating muscle fibers.

MD, as it's nicknamed, has been a personal and public obsession of Lewis for more than 20 of his 46 years. When asked why, the comedian simply smiled and leaned back in his chair.

"That's the only question you won't get an answer to," he replied softly. "I've been married to my wife 29 years and for the better part of over 20 she's never asked me, nor does she know. It's the only secret I have.

"It's mine and it's between me and my kids," he said, meaning the youngsters stricken by MD. "But you can ask me anything else."

Lewis, national chairman of the New York-based Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America (MDAA), was in town to work on plans for his eighth Labor Day telethon for MD in as many years.

MDAA officials say the past seven have raised a total of $26.5 million. But they say the money from each show is only half the total annual income of the organization. The other half comes from year-around volunteer work on the grass-roots level.

Lewis' televised fund drives began in 1953, when he appeared on a Los Angeles station to host a two-hour show. They have since evolved into massive, carefully organized national efforts of 20 hours and longer.

This year's telethon will originate from Las Vegas with a full roster of stars Lewis has dragooned for the cause. MDAA officials say the Hughes Television Network will feed the show to at least 150 TV stations and that the program will include live performances broadcast from New York, Los Angeles, and Nashville, Tenn.

Lewis, a tall, lean man who isn't visibly ravaged either by age or 12-hour workdays, held up a red spiral binder at least three inches thick. It contained plans, sketches and ideas for the coming show, as well as reference data from past shows.

"By the time I go on the air," he said, "I'll have four to six books just like this."

He said his 1972 show from New York — the telethons have been nationally broadcast since 1970 — took nine months of advance planning. Work on the 1973 program began in earnest last January.

Telethons get virtually all their funds from viewers who call in and pledge a donation. Cynics say there frequently is a wide disparity between the amount pledged and that actually received.

To which MDAA officials quickly reply that the cynics are wrong, at least in the case of Lewis' telethons. They cite last year's record-breaking show as an example.

A final audit the MDAA officials say, showed that of $9.2 million pledged, $9,096,841 actually had been received as of Dec. 31. Based on past experience, they say, the remainder probably will be in well before the next show.

But even considering that performers waive their fees and the Hughes network contributes its services, how much of that money is eaten up by the costs of putting on the show?

An MDAA spokesman said last year the bite came to $1,277,295, of which $628,600 went for "line charges" — money charged, the spokesman said, by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., whose lines feed the show to television stations.

The bulk of the remaining expense went for the installation of phones at TV stations where volunteers took pledges, he said.

Lewis winces when people ask about the costs of the show: "I don't even want to hear about it. It jut kills me to think that even one penny isn't going for 'my kids' and the research and treatment they need."

And he gets angry when talking about telethons — such as the one held last year for Democratic party candidates — that raise funds to elect, not cure. The anger came out during a rambling answer to why he puts so much time and energy into the MD telethons.

"Because there's no way you can do it unless you do it right," he said.

He leafed through a folder and pulled out a handwritten letter. A small color photograph of a chubby, smiling boy was attached to it.

The child, he said, "has two brothers who are beyond any medical help. This grandmother writes, 'Because of you, David may be spared.' Okay Look at that baby."

Throughout his interview here, Lewis repeatedly hesitated to say why he was so acutely concerned about helping find a cure for muscular cystrophy. He only went as far as to say MD never has afflicted either him or any member of his family.

His secret remained intact. So did his nonstop drive to enlist support for his cause.

"When I get through with you, I'll have another volunteer," the comedian said and he wasn't joking. "I'll have you do something for me you don't even know you're going to be doing."

"And that's not writing about it, that's after the fact. You'll wind up talking about it a little more than you might have in the pass, and that's where the key is."

Heartfelt Commitment

Jerry Lewis, the comedian, is a fund raiser for a cause he supports with rare intensity: muscular dystrophy. He's already well into planning this year's Labor Day telethon, the eighth in as many years, for the New York-based Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America of which he's national chairman. Their target is to raise $10 million to help the children who are those primarily afflicted by the disease. Lewis doesn't explain his obsession with the cause. But he has explained that "every time I lose one a piece of my heart goes."

Dan R. Eckles, a 1968 graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Eckles, Route 2, has accepted a position with the Bureau of Hospital Construction and Planning under the Missouri Division of Health and the Department of Public Health and Welfare. He graduated in 1972 from the University of Kansas school of architecture and urban design.

May Seek Postal Exemption

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal officials are mulling whether to seek a price freeze exemption in order to implement a planned July 6 rate boost for newspapers and other bulk mailers.

"We are studying the situation," said Postal Service spokesman Herb Wurth. "We may ask for an exemption."

The reason, he said, is simply this: If the service can't get more money from the mail users themselves, it will have to get it from Congress.

Wurth noted the Postal Reorganization Act demands that we "get out of the subsidy business" by 1981. The July 6 boost would be the second of five annual increments recommended last year by the independent postal rates commission.

The increases would apply to second class and some controlled circulation publications, some third class non-profit bulk materials and some fourth class matter, including books and records. First class and airmail rates would not be affected.

Under the complex rate formula, the boosts would range from less than 5 per cent on some types of bulk mail to 33 per cent on others. The cost of mailing a daily newspaper to a home within the same county, for example, would go from 1.1 cents to 1.2 cents. Rates are considerably higher for out-of-county mailings.

Fourth class rates for books and records would go from 14 to 16 cents on the first pound and from 7 to 8 cents on each additional pound.

Assets Increased By Co-op

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A recently formed grain and cattle cooperative says it has added ten Texas grain elevators and terminals and a North Dakota trucking firm to its assets.

However, the cooperative, the American Grain and Cattle Corp., says a previously announced $350 million oil deal with John Mecom Sr. of Houston is still being negotiated.

The cooperative said it has acquired the trucking firm of Raymond Cossette in Fargo, N.D. which it called "the largest grain trucking operation in the Dakotas."

According to a release, the newly added grain elevators and terminal facilities in Texas include Grain Inc. of Corpus Christi, Frio Milling Co. of Dilley, Holland Grain Co. of Perryton, and G. W. Simmons Grain Co. with facilities in the Texas Panhandle at Vega, Wildorado, Ford, Landergen and near Hereford.

In the release, no prices were mentioned.

The release quoted Harold S. Nelson, president of the cooperative, as saying a recent offer to buy the Lake Washington, La., oil field from Mecom is in "the final, detailed tages of negotiation."

Earlier this month, Mecom was quoted in Houston as saying he and the cooperative had agreed to a 10-year, $350 million arrangement for the production of the oil field. Mecom said the deal's worth could inspire independent producers to increase domestic exploration.

The Picksniff Papers

By ROBERT S. ALDRICH

The career of Captain Horatio Foxworthy Picksniff in the American Revolution is little known to historians. Until the Picksniff Papers were discovered in an attic in New England (you can find anything in an attic in New England) the spy organization, known to a few insiders, under the cover name of the Committee to Crown Washington Our King (CCWOK) had been ignored.

Fragments found among the papers show that a secret hearing was held in 1781 before a select committee of the Continental Congress looking into the activities of CCWOK. The committee found the affair so complex and difficult to follow that it adjourned after a few hours and reassembled at Mrs. McPherson's tavern where an effort was made to forget the whole thing.

General Washington was soon cleared of complicity in the Picksniff matter. Overworked trying to keep together his brave and tattered army, the Commander-in-Chief was apparently under the impression that Picksniff was spying on the British. The record shows friends tried to warn him that something fishy was going on. The General's reply was, "Keep it out of the newspapers."

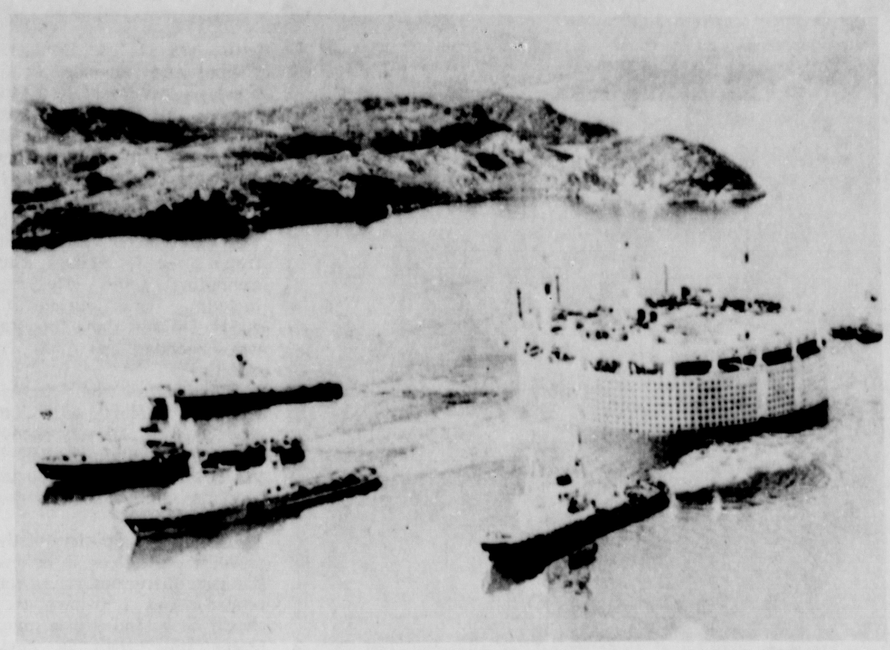

Picksniff's agents aimed their activities against "Whigs, Radicals, Malcontents, and Republican Riffraff." Exactly what their intentions were remains vague. It appears from the papers that they gathered information "in deepest stealth" in order to use it against political opponents.

The first break in the case came when five wigged and masked members of CCWOK were arrested by a night-watchman while dumping a sack of red ants inside Whig headquarters. The practice was called "bugging." Though not among the five, Picksniff's name was found on various chits and expense accounts.

Little was known of Picksniff's background. It was said that he had "played much at spye whilst yet a childe" and "did delight in wearning false whiskers and like disguise." A greater mystery is where CCWOK found the money to finance inter-Colony subversion. Agents traveled widely, breaking up meetings with "rude hooting." Picksniff traveled in a fine carriage with liveried servants, while his army pay was around four dollars a month.

There was a rumor that, after Washington refused a monarchy, Picksniff fled to France where he founded a Committee to Re-Crown Louis XVI, was arrested while rifling the files of Citizen Robespierre, and was guillotined. The facts, however, are not substantiated.

It is aggravating not to know more of the Picksniff Affair but it is comforting to realize that things like this just don't happen any more.

Floating Storage

"Ekofisk," a massive concrete oil storage tank, is towed out from Stavanger, Norway, harbor by six tugboats to the North Sea's first commercial offshore oil operation. The 215,000-ton tank, which measures 442 feet in diameter, will rest on the sea floor in 360 feet of water and has a storage capacity of up to a million barrels of crude oil. (UPI)

200 Merchants Must Yet Buy 1973 Licenses

About 200 local businessmen have not yet purchased their city merchants licenses for the coming year, City Collector Mrs. Opal Hugelman announced Friday.

The deadline for purchasing the licenses without paying the 10 per cent penalty fee is next Saturday, Mrs. Hugelman said. An additional one per cent penalty fee is levied for each subsequent month in which the license is not purchased, she added.

Merchants may purchase the licenses at Mrs. Hugelman's office at city hall.

Watergate, Pilot Action Are Blamed

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The president of American Airlines says public reaction to the Watergate scandal and a "pilot slowdown" helped account for his company's loss of $36.1 million for the first five months of this year.

George A. Warde added that sharply rising costs will force American to file shortly for a fare increase.

In an interview Thursday he said that as a result of the extensive coverage of the Watergate case and the uncertainty over the ultimate result, "people are sitting tight, waiting for whatever develops."

Warde, whose company is the nation's second largest domestic air carrier, said the "pilot slowdown from mid-December to mid-April of this year cost the airline approximately $18 million.

Coffee Shop Talk Can Be Confusing

By DERECK WILLIAMSON

Three coffees to go.

Right. How do you want 'em?

One with just cream, one with just sugar, and one with cream and sugar.

Right. You want one of them black, right?

Right. Just one gets sugar.

Wrong. I said "one gets just sugar." You said "just one gets sugar." What I want is one with just cream, one with just sugar, and one with cream and sugar both. When you say "just one gets sugar" that would mean that of the three cups, you'd only put sugar in one of them. But I want sugar in two of the three cups.

Right. Two of the three get sugar, and one of those two is black.

Well, I don't know about that. I kind of think of black coffee as having nothing at all in it. Like, you know, no sugar or cream or anything.

Why didn't you say so in the first place? You want one with just coffee in it. No sugar, no cream, nothing.

No. Tell you what; let's look at it this way. Sugar gets put into two cups. Cream gets put into one of the two cups the sugar went into. Got that so far?

Right.

Now, in the third cup, the one with nothing in it up till now, goes cream. That makes — let's see — one with sugar, one with cream, and one with both sugar and cream. Then you just add the coffee, right?

Wrong. I always put the coffee in the containers first. And then I add cream and sugar.

Look, it doesn't actually matter which goes in first! It's how it goes in. No, I mean where it goes in! How!

Don't get excited, I got it. I'm doing it. Cool it.

Why are you marking the lid like that?

Like what?

You just checked the block "No Cream" next to the word "Regular." How can you have a regular coffee with no cream? How, how?

That's the one with just sugar. This other one has only cream in it. See, I market it "Regular" with "No Sugar."

So the third one is just "Regular?"

I don't think so. I got that one marked "Light."

Light!?!

Right.

Beating Motive Is Political

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — The wife of a Caseyville, Ill., politician listed in serious condition Friday night at a hospital here said she was beaten and her life threatened by five men who warned that her husband must drop an election lawsuit.

Mary Mayfield, 50, said the five men forced their way into her home Thursday night, beat her and threatened to kill her if her husband, Sterling, did not drop a federal lawsuit contesting the April Caseyville election.

Police said they were still investigating the case and refused to release any information on the alleged beating, which apparently left Mrs. Mayfield with a concussion and leg and arm injuries.

Mayfield filed suit in U. S. District Court last month following his defeat by some 100 votes in his bid for a fourth term as Caseyville mayor. William Luebbers won the nonpartisan election.

In his suit, Mayfield charged irregularities in election procedures that violated his civil rights.

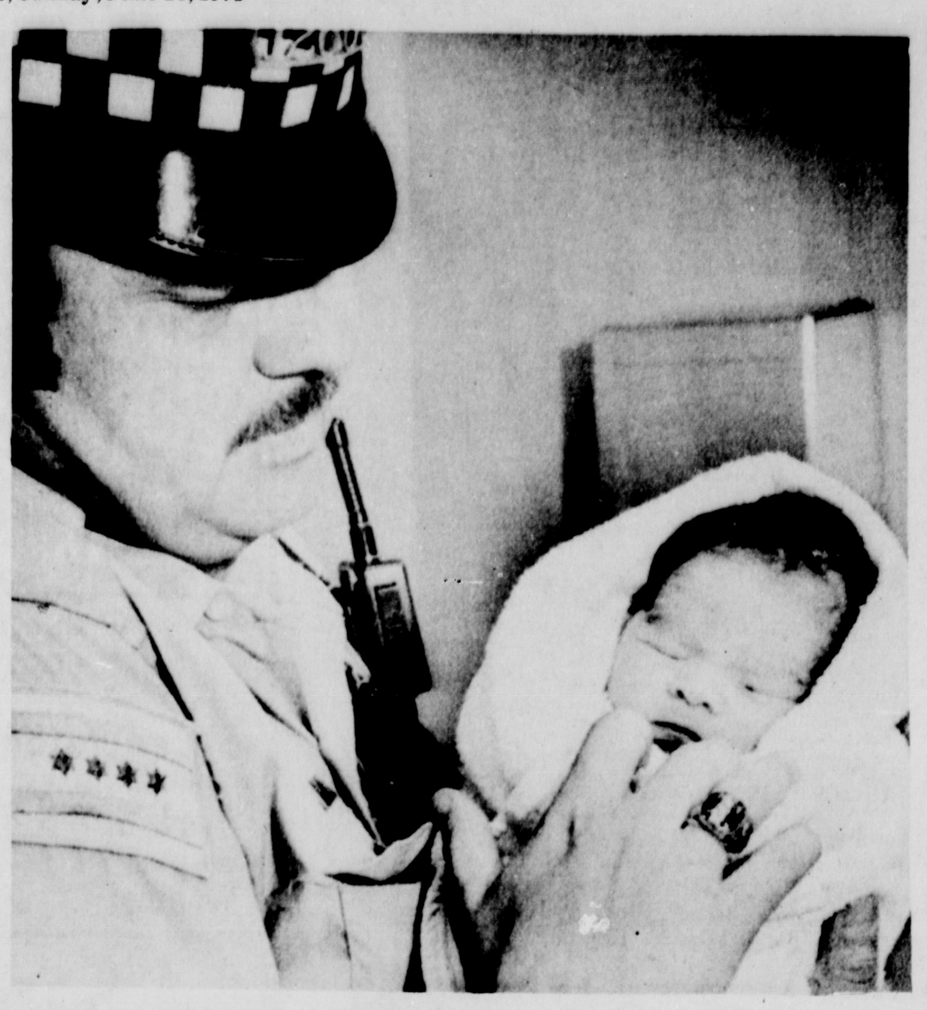

Last Wednesday, however, Federal Judge James L. Foreman denied Mayfield's request for a temporary injunction invalidating the balloting and gave the defendants in the case until July 9 to file answers to the charges.

Russell Classen, the attorney handling the former mayor's suit, said the politician has no intention of dropping it.

"It's time something is done to clean up this mess," he said.

Mayor Luebbers said he was shocked by the report of the beating.

"If this is true, I hope the police catch the party or parties responsible for it," Luebbers said.

Infant Saved

Patrolman John Raetzman holds an hours-old baby boy he and his partner found Thursday in a garbage can in an alley on Chicago's west side. They took the child to Illinois Masonic Hospital where doctors estimated the child was only one-hour-old when found. The child is in excellent condition. If the parents are not located, the baby will be offered for adoption. (UPI)

Police Refuse To Take On Wellston Duty

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Officials of the St. Louis County Police Department said Friday the department will not assume police functions in suburban Wellston unless officials of that city ask it to do so.

Gus O. Nations, vice chairman of the county Police Board, said there has been no evidence that laws in the city of some 7,000 were not being enforced.

The county grand jury directed the county police department to takeover law enforcement in Wellston Thursday after citing "a breakdown of law and order in the (Wellston) department."

But Nations said, "We have not had a single complaint from a citizen. We have made an effort to determine the state of peace in Wellston and feel the government is functioning."

Nixon Veto On Money Bill A Possibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has passed a $19 billion appropriation bill financing nine government agencies for the next fiscal year, but the measure may be vetoed by President Nixon.

The bill, passed Friday by 316 to 21 vote, contained appropriations totaling $453 million more than the President requested and included financing for some programs he wanted replaced or changed.

Attempts to increase or decrease allotments recommended by the Appropriations Committee were voted down.

The largest increase over amounts requested by the President was in the Department of Housing and Urban Development's community development programs. The House voted to give the programs $842.9 million, compared with a White House request of $160.4 million.

Among amendments defeated were ones to cut funds for the Selective Service System, the Model Cities Program and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's space shuttle program.

Price Freeze Criticized

Readers of The Democrat-Capital who responded to last Sunday's survey said, by a 2-to-1 margin, that President Nixon's latest price freeze was not effective, and one of them suggested the freeze should be placed directly on labor costs.

Specifically, the question was: "President Nixon has frozen prices for 60 days, while exempting some categories, including raw agricultural goods. Do you think this step was needed and will be effective?"

Among those who disagreed with the President's action, one reader wrote, "It was needed two years ago and now is likely to be ineffective, inducing evasions and black market activities."

One of the supporters of the move wrote: "Yes, I believe this step of freezing prices was needed. And I believe they should be extended to a much longer time than 60 days. Although I feel they should have been frozen before they got so high, they are still going higher and each time you go grocery shopping everything is up from 10 to 20 cents.

"Now it is up to each citizen to watch these prices and notify the Internal Revenue department if they go any higher. I am 100 per cent for freezing prices and keeping them frozen," she concluded.

A reader who did not feel this way said, "I feel the freeze should be on labor. A tree in the woods is not of much value, but the process of making it into lumber makes lumber very expensive. The same with other things, where the finished product is priced out of reach.

"No wonder we have so many imports. As for raw agriculture goods, the farmers have to buy expensive machines made of iron and steel, seed, fertilizer, gas, etc., and then, since the price on finished products is frozen, labor isn't going to take a cut. So the farmer automatically has his raw products frozen. When a ceiling was placed on meat, the packers closed their doors until the prices of meat dropped and they could buy cheaper and pay higher labor costs. No benefits were passed onto the consumer," he said.

Another reader, although favoring Nixon's action, wrote, "This is not the answer to the problem. Until the cause for inflation is found, no amount of price freezing activity will keep costs at reasonable levels."

Summit Brings New Peace Hopes

By LOUIS HARRIS

The American people view the latest summit meeting between President Nixon and Soviet party chief Brezhnev as marking a major breakthrough in efforts to bring the world closer to a lasting peace. The public now feels that the world's two major superpowers are embarked on a long-term course which will yield agreements of major significance.

By a 78-8 per cent, an overwhelming majority of the American people approved the summit meeting in a survey completed last Monday among a cross section of 1,509 households. By 59 to 22 per cent, a majority now believe it is possible for the U.S. and Russia to reach long-term agreements to help keep the peace. In May of 1972, just prior to Nixon's trip to Moscow, the public held a similar view by a closer 52-38 per cent.

For a number of years now, the public in this country has been somewhat skeptical and highly cautious about expecting real progress from summit talks. Since 1968, at no point did the survey find more than 30 per cent of the people who felt that relations between the U.S. and Russia were really "improving." However, now a massive 66 per cent of the public has come to the conclusion that relations are indeed growing better. Periodically, cross sections have been asked: "Do you feel U.S. and Russian relations are improving, growing worse, or staying the same?"

	Improving	Worse	Same	Not Sure
	%	%	%	%
June 14th-18th, 1973	66	2	24	8
May, 1972	28	10	57	5
June, 1971	38	4	52	6
September, 1970	28	7	57	8
November, 1968	24	7	63	6
October, 1968	18	14	63	5
July, 1968	33	8	52	7

Five years ago, after President Johnson and Premier Kosygin had met at the Glassboro summit, no more than 33 per cent of the American people felt that relations between the two nations were improving. After the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia in the fall of 1968, the number who felt optimistic slipped to a low of 18 per cent. Optimism rose slowly during 1970 and 1971, but a majority felt that no change in relations really had taken place. Even on the eve of the 1972 summit, a majority of 57 per cent felt that the two superpowers were still locked into an essentially Cold War, uneasy relationship.

But now with the end of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, and with the latest Brezhnev visit, two out of every three Americans see real and substantial improvement in relations with Soviet Russia. By close to a 2-1 margin, most people believe that this latest summit has brought the world "closer to peace."

Back of this highly significant overall change, the American people see in U.S.-Soviet relations a sweeping mandate of specific agreements they would like to see the two countries reach:

- By 51-27 per cent, a majority support "giving Russia a favored nation status in trade as most Western nations now have with us."
- By 72-10 per cent, a majority favor agreement to "limit the number of nuclear submarines each country has."
- By 70-13 per cent, people favor "reducing the number of American and Russian troops in central and western Europe."
- By 72-14 per cent, most support "expanding trade between the two countries."
- By 69-17 per cent, a majority support "exchanging scientist and other technical missions." Back in 1963, a similar question yielded 54-34 per cent opposition from the American people.
- By 75-10 per cent, most favor the two countries "undertaking joint exploration of the oceans."
- By 73-10 per cent, a majority support the U.S. and Russia "taking joint action if another nation threatens to use nuclear weapons."
- By 73-10 per cent, most support "further limiting anti-missile (ABM) systems."
- By 81-6 per cent, a majority also support the two nations "jointly recommending that East and West European countries pledge not to go to war against each other."
- By 83-6 per cent, a massive number support "joint efforts to curb air and water pollution."
- By 84-4 per cent, a majority favor agreement "to get Russia to allow Jews to leave that country more easily."
- By 82-4 per cent, people would welcome U.S.-USSR agreement to "bring about a Middle East settlement."

Obviously, not all of these items on a potential U.S.-Soviet agenda were likely to be agreed upon in this past week's summit talks. But the American people obviously view improvement of relations with Russia as not only possible but entirely probable.

There has been a dramatic turnaround in public opinion over the past five years, as evidenced in this question: "Do you feel the U.S. and Russia can reach long-term agreements to help keep the peace, or do you think that is not possible?"

	1973	1968
Can do it	59	34
Not possible	22	50
Not sure	19	16

The fulfillment of this optimism, of course, depends upon agreements covering specific points of progress included in the final Nixon-Brezhnev pronouncement. But, it is evident the American people are prepared to believe that the Cold War has about come to an end and a new era of moving toward peace is at hand in U.S.-Soviet relations.

Flood Relief Funds Approved

Pettis County has been approved to receive $35,000 in emergency conservation assistance as part of a $252,500 allocation to the Missouri State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

One of 42 counties to receive the money, the county recently requested the $35,000 in aid to repair damage caused by spring floods and tornadoes. Dick Dalton, ASCS office manager in Pettis County, said he received notification of the approval Friday.

Sen. Stuart Symington, who also announced the allocation, said, "Many Missouri farmers will now have an opportunity to get federal assistance in their efforts to recover from last spring's devastating weather. Such assistance is badly needed in many hard-hit areas of our state."

Funds for flood repair to damaged crop lands may be obtained by those farmers who have already begun repair work, or those who have not yet done so, Dalton said.

The usual procedure is for farmers who have not begun such work to file an application for funds with the local ASCS office. Dalton said the county committee then passes on the request and sends a Soil Conservation Service technician to the land in question to pass on the amount of damage done. Although the committee can recommend payment, final outlay of funds depends on the SCS technician's report. He also passes on work after it is completed, Dalton says.

In cases where farmers did not wait for approval of federal assistance, a request for aid must be filed 30 days from Friday in order to be eligible, Dalton said. "They can still get cost-share assistance, but they must file their claim within 30 days," Dalton emphasized. Farmers should be prepared to present paid bills to indicate the amount of assistance needed.

Dalton also stressed that the federal funds would be applied only to damage done to crop lands, and not other property — such as barns, homes, and so on.

Symington reported that the emergency conservation assistance program operates on a cost-share basis, with the federal government contributing 80 per cent and the farmer 20 per cent.

Other area counties approved for assistance include Benton, Cooper, Henry, Johnson and Saline.

It was also announced Saturday that the deadline for filing applications for Small Business Administration loans for Pettis County flood victims had been extended to July 31.

Disaster assistance branch offices in operation Monday through Saturday each week, a spokesman said, are being maintained in St. Louis and St. Charles Counties. In addition, the spokesman said, assistance at various times during the week is being offered at nine other eastern Missouri locations.

The branch offices in operation Monday through Saturday from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. are located in Maryland Heights in St. Louis County and in St. Charles.

Other Missouri flood victims were asked by the SBA to contact agency representatives who maintain office hours at intervals during the week in Elsberry, Hannibal, LaGrange, Arnold, Ste. Genevieve, Cape Girardeau, Charleston, Carruthersville and Sikeston.

Other area counties affected are:

Tenton, Johnson, Lafayette, Moniteau, Morgan and Saline Counties.

Welfare Fraud Case Ends in Sentencing

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A prison term of one to five years was ordered Friday in Wyandotte County District Court for Ramon Rabon, Kansas City, Kan., who was convicted by a jury earlier this week of felony welfare fraud.

A Kansas law that became effective in July, 1972 upgraded welfare fraud involving more than $50 from a misdemeanor to a felony. Rabon was found guilty of trying to get a duplicate $292 check for aid to dependent children after cashing the original check.

Lawmen Are Delighted

Pornography Ruling Gets Applause

By BERNARD COHEN
Associated Press Writer

Prosecutors and police officials are delighted by the Supreme Court's new ruling on obscenity and many say it is just what they needed to lower the boom on dirty books and movies.

"If I operated one of those stores, I'd close like two minutes ago," Florida Asst. Atty. Gen. Ray Marky said Thursday after hearing of the ruling. "I think they are out of business."

Similar optimism was voiced by law enforcement officials across the nation after the high court widened the definition of obscenity and said community standards should prevail.

The new guidelines will permit states to ban books, magazines, plays, and motion pictures that offend local standards, even if they might be approved elsewhere.

Many officials felt the court had finally clarified the language of the law and they cited the difficulty and expense in the past of applying national standards of decency to local cases.

"I expect that in the immediate future local communities can determine for themselves what will and what will not be tolerated in the nature of explicit sexual material," said Larry Salmon, Floyd County district attorney and chairman of the criminal law section of the state bar of Georgia.

Arkansas Atty. Gen. Jim Guy Tucker concurred.

However, the 5-4 decision met with sharp criticism from civil libertarians, book and magazine publishers, movie theater and book store owners and patrons of the pornographic arts.

"That's no victory for civil liberties," said Melvin Wulf, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union. "That's a serious setback for freedom of speech and of the press."

Jack Frantz, executive chairman of the National Book Committee, said his group has always argued that community standards meant the American community at large.

"It's absurd on its face that a book is deemed obscene, say, in Binghamton, N.Y., and not in Carmel, Calif. It's patently unfair to the reader," Frantz said.

Tom Ferrell, managing editor of Esquire magazine, responded, "I think for a national publication, it's kind of scary. If it means that there are going to be 50 laws governing obscenity, rather than one, it's going to be very troublesome for everyone."

In Chicago, a spokesman for Charles Levy Circulating Co., which distributes Playboy, Penthouse and similar magazines, said the company does not consider them "pornographic in any way, shape or form" and he foresaw no problems with the new law.

Ralph G. Haddun, 76, owner of an adult movie theater in Charlotte, N.C., criticized the decision.

"We don't make 'em come in here. We don't go out with a shotgun. It's supposed to be a free country," he said.

New Electricty Source Goal of New Agreement

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have agreed to a joint effort to harness the nuclear reaction that explodes H-bombs as a means to produce virtually limitless and pollution-free electricity.

But, presumably because of military rivalries, they will not engage in joint research on the newest theoretical approach to achieve the goal—the use of laser beams.

In theory, the controlled fusion of hydrogen atoms to produce thermonuclear energy for electricity would be easier to achieve with intensely hot laser beams than by older, controlled-fusion concepts.

But, again in theory, the laser-fusion concept could also be employed to produce a new kind of hydrogen weapon—the "laser bomb."

And the United States, at least, has disclosed that it's been working for at least five years to try to develop such a weapon.

A "laser bomb" would be an H-bomb in which the intense heat of a laser beam—perhaps the most powerful and concentrated form of light in the universe—would be used to trigger the hydrogen explosives, instead of the A-bomb trigger now required.

And a laser-triggered hydrogen bomb—or a laser-equipped hydrogen warhead for an intercontinental ballistic missile—IBM—would be simpler, smaller and "cleaner" from the standpoint of releasing radioactivity than one triggered by an A-bomb.

The non-inclusion of laser-fusion research in the new, intensified effort to harness the H-bomb reaction was disclosed Thursday at a news briefing on various items included in the new agreement signed by the two nations regarding collaboration in the field of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Dr. Dixy Lee Ray, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, said without amplification, in answer to a question:

"Laser-fusion research is not an official part of the present agreement."

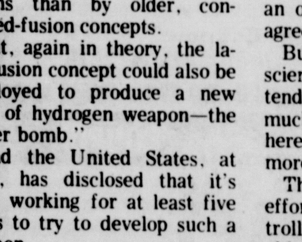

But she made it plain that scientists of the two nations intended to push ahead, with much greater intensity than heretofore, in joint research on more conventional approaches.

The reason for the stepped-up effort, she said, is that "controlled-fusion research is probably the greatest hope that society has for an energy source that is pollution-free..."

The two nations pledged to intensify their joint efforts to perfect "fast breeder" reactors.

Those would be atomic power plants that would actually "breed" or create more atomic fuel than they consumed in keeping the nuclear "fires" burning.

AND SEW FORTH By Althea Bailey

SEW SHARP!

Needles today come in many sizes and types, including the "ballpoint" used for sewing on polyesters. The ballpoint is designed so that the needle slips between the fibers rather than hitting on the fibers, which frequently causes them to break. Did you know that the earliest known needle was made from a fishbone? Muscle sinews were used for thread, and the fabrics were skins of animals. When needles and pins as we know them were first used in England, the price was almost prohibitive, and a woman's needle was a prized possession. But, for a great conversation starter, try this: A gold needle was found in Cleopatra's tomb among her personal possessions...Wonder if she made sport jackets for Mark Anthony? Hmmmm...
She probably would have if there had been a Fabrific store nearby where she could choose from a wide selection of menswear fabrics in plaids, checks, tone on tone, and many others.
Even menswear sewing is easier today with all of the easy sew, easy care fabrics that we have. Try it! — He'll like it!
The stub ends of thread sometimes show a bit after hand sewing, no matter how closely the ends are trimmed — on a snap, for example. After fastening the thread with a double stitch, direct the needle into a layer of fabric and out again about an inch away. Pull tight, and cut the thread. It gets "lost" in the garment.

New Eligibles Seek Independent Life

NEW YORK (AP) — They are beautiful, bright, well-bred and well-off. Handsome bachelors pursue them; fashion magazines photograph them; the society columns chat about them.

They are the most eligible women in town.

But these sought-after females of the '70s are different from the postdebs of the past who played with daddy's money until Mrs. Millionaire Right came along.

They still jet to London and Rome, not now it's most probably on business. Couture clothes still hang in the closet, but they don't get used as much as the blue jeans. The last visit to the beauty parlor might have been weeks ago—just for a hair cut. And this year's party scene is a quiet dinner for six at home.

There are dozens of such women. Looks or family name and wealthy may have brought them into the social scene, but the things they do, their varied interests and their views on men, money and life ambitions reflect an independence unmatched by the eligibles of the last decade.

And, in many cases, marriage is the farthest thing from their minds.

Mazie Cox, 27, is typical of the new single woman. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Cox, a Social Register family. Her brother Ed is married to Tricia Nixon.

A former debutante of the year who was featured as a model in top fashion magazines, Mazie is a graduate of the Yale School of Architecture. She was taught architecture at Smith College and is currently involved in New York City's Madison Avenue Mall project.

She said she's totally self-supporting now and doesn't care if the men she dates are wealthy. "Of course, when you've had something it's a lot easier to say you don't need it. But my generation has seen people working hard to get money and still not be happy. Spiriaul goals in life are a lot harder to attain than a Cadillac."

Former Olympic skier, Suzy Chaffee, 26, is involved in so many activities there's little time left for dating.

As a founder of the World Sports Foundation and a member of the U.S. Olympic Committee she is busy enlisting government aid for amateur athletes. She is a television sports commentator, a sometime model, designer and skiing film star.

"My life is my work and my work is my life. The people I enjoy most are the people whose work I respect," she said.

She occasionally dates Bill Bradley, the professional basketball player.

Sherry Hendrickson Is Bride of R. M. Vinson

An evening ceremony at Calvary Temple Church formed the setting for the wedding of Miss Sherry Hendrickson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hendrickson, Kansas City, and Randy Mark Vinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Vinson, 2400 South Ingram.

MRS. RANDY MARK VINSON
Miss Sherry Hendrickson

Bill Rutledge, vocalist, was accompanied by Miss Sherri Butenback at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length empire gown of Alencon lace and peau d'ange styled with a high collar and long sleeves. Appliques of lace trimmed the bodice, neckline, fitted cuffs and flaring silk skirt. A detachable train flowed from the high back waist. A bandeau of silk petals held her imported elbow length veil of bridal illusion and she carried a trailing bouquet of ivy accented with stephanotis and nested with a bouquet of white daisies.

Miss Debra Sherman, maid of honor, wore a princess styled floor length gown of pale turquoise double knit. Accented with a rounded neckline and baby doll sleeves, it was tied in back with a soft bow. A pale turqouise bow held her veil. She carried a garden basket of deep yellow spring flowers accented with butterflies and bows.

Miss Debra Rutledge, bridesmaid, was dressed identical to the maid of honor. Junior bridesmaid, Miss Leasa Hendrickson, sister of the bride, wore an identical gown with daisies trimming the neck, sleeves and waist. Miss Kimberly Clark was the flower girl. She was dressed identical to the junior bridesmaid. Each carried a garden basket of deep yellow spring flowers accented with butterflies and bows.

Bill Goldy was best man and groomsman was Eugene Bozarth, nephew of the groom. Walter Clark and Royal Kellner served as ushers and Daniel Hendrickson, brother of the bride, was ringbearer.

A church reception followed the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with white netting and a satin underlay caught at each end with yellow satin bows. The four tier column cake was centered on a mirror and encircled with greenery. Two silver candelabra flanked the cake and a three level flowing fountain with a lighted base complimented the table.

Mrs. Lilly Vansel baked and served the cake with the assistance of her husband, Henry Vansel. Punch was served by Mrs. Walter Clark. Miss Nordica Buckner presided over the guestbook and Miss Debbie Vinson, niece of the groom, attended the gifts.

Ream-Stewart Married In Afternoon Ceremony

(Democrat-Capital Service)

FLORENCE — An early afternoon ceremony June 9 at Mount Olive Baptist Church, united Miss Lizabeth Ream, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Starke, Florence, and William Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stewart, Raytown.

The Rev. Leroy Moon officiated before an altar decorated with two standing arrangements of white gladioli and pink poms with white ribbons and baby's breath.

The heightened bodice featured a lace overlay and was styled with a square neckline and long sheer sleeves ending with fitted lace cuffs. A wide satin ribbon insertaion trimmed the bodice, circled the waist and formed a wide hem on the full silk shirt.

The bridal headdress was a tulle petal bandeau embroidered with sequins, which held her elbow length veil of imported illusion. She carried a cascade of pink roses with purple statice throughout.

Miss Sandra Laas was the maid of honor. She wore a floor length empire waisted gown of pink and lavender flowers over a lavender underlay. Long bishop sleeves, a high collar and sheer yoke accented the dress. Ruffles encircled the bottom and she carried a cascade of pink and white carnations.

Clint Hibdon was the best man and the groomsman was Rick Stewart, brother of the groom. John Starke, brother of the bride, and John Stewart, brother of the groom were ushers.

'Old Country Boy' Determined to Keep Gavel

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Sen. William J. Cason calls himself "just an old country boy," but he's warning any Republicans who try to take over his chair as presiding officer in the Senate to watch out for his walnut gavel.

The gavel was given to the Senate's President pro tem early this year by the Jaycees from his home town of Clinton. He says it weighs only a pound but "you can use it for getting mules in line."

Cason mentioned the gavel in an interview as he recounted the attempt by Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps to take the chair during the last day of the 1973 session.

"What was part-time (Phelps) going to do when he got to the top of the stairs? I had this gavel made of Henry County walnut," Cason said.

Cason said he had the sergeant at arms eject Phelps because of his loud protest. The lieutenant governor failed in an attempt to get a court order saying he had the constitutional right to preside. But Phelps says the matter still will be decided by the state Supreme Court.

The Senate—the upper chamber of the legislature—is usually a place of decorum. But somehow the scene of Cason and Phelps, a Republican, having one last go round, seemed a fitting end to 5½ months of partisan fighting between the Democratic-controlled legislature and the new Republican administration.

Cason has emerged as the top Democrat in the legislature and is often mentioned as a possible gubernatorial candidate in 1976. That might put him against Republican incumbent Christopher S. Bond if Bond seeks re-election.

At 48, Cason is a handsome six footer who wears stylish clothes, has an engaging manner, and despite the incident on the Senate dais, usually projects the image of the seasoned legislator.

The son of a store owner in Clinton, Cason once sold grocery items from barrels. He was a bomber pilot in World War II, later he became a lawyer and has been in the Senate since 1960.

In 1962 he narrowly escaped death in the flaming wreck of his car. He was en route to the Capitol for the first day of the session when a pickup truck pulled out in front of him near Windsor, Mo.

Cason went through the windshield and his car exploded and burned. He was glad he didn't buckle his seat belt. An interim committee report on Medicaid and a bill to institute it in Missouri were destroyed.

But he was in the Senate several weeks later, in a wheelchair, to see the bill passed.

He earned the respect of fellow senators for his fairness as majority floor leader and this year was elected president pro tem.

The minority floor leader, Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, said Cason's personality changed this year, because he's been running hard for governor.

"He's been wearing it on his sleeve the whole session," Jones said.

Cason has been nothing but trouble for the 34-year-old Bond, who deposed the Democrats after a 28-year reign.

The fighting began in January and intensified Feb. 5, when the Democratic leaders formally reprimanded Bond on the House and Senate floor because of a memo sent to agency heads telling them to clear all legislative contracts with the governor's office.

Cason, as chairman of the Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee, was instrumental in blocking Bond's appointments of Robert James as director of administration, Edward Haynes as personnel director, and Lee Schuster as a Missouri University curator.

He says if Bond intends to renominate Schuster it will only cause trouble on the Missouri University board. "I guarantee you, Schuster will not be confirmed," Cason said, raising his thumb like a baseball umpire, "he'll be out again."

The mention of Bond's name stirs Cason into harsh criticism: "He acts like he was elected king, instead of governor."

The senator had his hour of satisfaction when the Democratic leaders won a Supreme Court suit limiting Bond's veto power. Afterwards, he said Bond should "seek the advice of wiser heads before making it necessary to appear in court to correct the mistakes of immature advisers."

For his part, Bond refrains from trading barbs with Cason. "The actions and words of the senator speak for themselves. Everybody can make their own assessment," the governor said.

When the session ended, Bond said he was disappointed at the legislature's low productivity. Cason, taking credit for passage of bills to require open meetings and government reorganization, and to regulate Blue Cross and Blue Shield, said the legislative achievements were outstanding and credited the governor with "little or no leadership . . . and sometimes his active interference."

Cason complains that during the Phelps incident the Missouri Information Service, a news agency run by the governor's office, did not seek his comments, only those of Phelps.

He said the tax-supported operation has become Bond's political tool, always trying to make the administration look good and the legislature appear to do nothing.

"The senators have to take the rap if the bills don't pass. We should have the right to decide what will be discussed," Cason said.

"They tried to come in and tell the senators what to debate and what to pass. No way. No way."

Asked if he was going to run for governor, Cason said:

"That's too far off to speculate. That's not even the next election."

He got up from the interview and headed for a televised panel show. Again he blasted the Republicans. Again he denied he was thinking of any officer other than running the state Senate.

Gas Shortage Reportedly Not That Bad

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Although the city parks and recreation department has been notified it will not get any more gasoline from its regular supplier this month, Public Works Director Mike Salmon says the situation is not as bad as it sounds.

Salmon said the parks and recreation department can get gasoline from the city's general supply after it runs out Monday, and it should be able to make it thought June.

"The crisis isn't bad yet, but it could be before the summer is out," Salmon said.

The public works director said he believes Joplin will be allotted only 15,000 gallons of fuel in July, instead of the usual 16,000.

The city purchases its gasoline from the Pioneer Oil Co., a jobber for Gulf Oil.

American tourist: endangered species?

The Great American Tourist, who in increasing droves carried the flag to Europe and points East every summer, may be an endangered species. In his place are coming Japanese, German and other European tourists who have discovered America, of all places.

Although the tide of American tourists is as great as ever in Europe this summer, the higher prices are coming as a rude shock to many who still have the idea that the Continent is a bargain. The twice-devalued and downward-floating dollar — which has lost 25 per cent of its worth abroad in the last 18 months—won't buy as much as it used to.

Food, lodging and transportation, as well as consumer goods, are costing Americans so much that home, with all its economic problems, is beginning to look good. Part of this is due to Europe's own problems with inflation, which is running as high as 15 per cent in some countries.

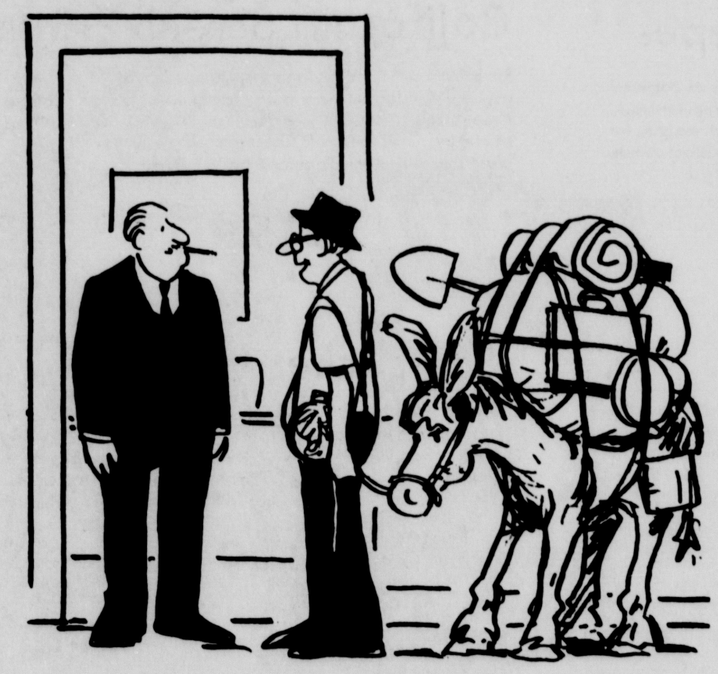

The great days of the almighty Yankee dollar are gone in Europe, and even in parts of Asia, especially Japan where the yen is much stronger.

As a result of the dollar's decline, the U.S. is now considered a tourist bargain by foreigners, especially the Germans and Japanese. The U.S. Travel Service estimates that 3.45 million visitors from abroad will come to America this year, 20.6 per cent more than in 1972.

Thus we can expect to see more camera-bedecked, Bermuda shorts-clad Japanese and Germans seeing America in two weeks and complaining about the water, the money system and the fact that they can't get sukiyaki and wienerschnitzel at Howard Johnson's.

The sport of kings riddled with crime

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A confidential House Crime Committee report has found that horse racing is a sick industry afflicted with political payoffs, fixed races and infestations of Mafia men and money that make the $2 bettor an inevitable also-ran.

So controversial is the 183-page volume of abuses in the Sport of Kings that some committee members doubt it will be released publicly. We have obtained a copy intended only for selected congressmen.

State by state, it details how ordinary bettors are suckered into paying off winning tickets for Cosa Nostra financiers and their touts at the track.

"We have determined that inadequate security at many thoroughbred tracks and harness raceways has led to race fixing which threatens not only the integrity of the state in which the sport is sanctioned, but that of the industry itself," asserts the document.

"This committee has heard of schemes as simple in design as that of a dishonest jockey hoping an electrical charge applied to his mount will put him into the winner's circle. We have also heard of elaborate conspiracies in which an entire race was effectively tied up by knocking out half the field... with drugs."

The racing industry, says the report, has refused to face its problems "due to misguided desire to protect the image of the sport."

In track after track, hypodermic syringes were used to "hype" up horses to win, or to "pacify" them with a drug called acepromazine to make them lose. The committee found 12 states where high-class "ringers" using the phony credentials of "nags" were entered in third class races. The "ringers" of course, ran away with their races, and the fixers ran away with the money.

As unsavory a group of Mafia men as ever attended a crime conference was found in racing. Among Cosa Nostra blue bloods in racing were Raymond Patriarcha of New England, the Gallo family and Thomas Lucchese of New York, Anthony Zerilli of Detroit and Carlos Marcello of New Orleans.

Their ownership of tracks, however, has been hidden behind "nominees" and "straws," legal devices for hiding investments. The committee study observes tartly that "most state licensing procedures are so perfunctory that... hidden ownership is a likelihood."

Because there is so much money in horse racing, payoffs to politicians for licenses are "a normal cost of doing business," the committee study says.

In Louisiana, as one example, Racing Chairman Albert Stall was appointed shortly after he admitted publicly that he placed bets with bookmakers. "Such an admission in itself should be grounds for removal," charges the study.

In Illinois, "the greatest scandal in racing in recent years occurred (when) a governor, chairman of the racing board and other state officials secured undisclosed stock ownership in a racing association in violation of state statute."

In New York, a race track concessionaire made a $100,000 payoff to New York State Republican Chairman Judson Morhouse, the study says. Morhouse reportedly turned back the money on orders of New York governor Nelson Rockefeller, the report goes on.

Other payoffs, fixes and assorted scandals are reported in Arkansas, Arizona, Hawaii, California, Michigan, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Florida and New Jersey.

To stem some of the abuses, the report recommends these federal actions:

✔ A $10,000 fine and 20 years in jail for anyone who tampers with the outcome of a race.

✔ A $10,000 fine and 10 years in prison for anyone at race tracks possessing drugs or mechanical or electrical goads for speeding up or slowing down horses.

✔ Similar punishment for anyone concealing or falsifying the ownership or the pedigrees of horses.

✔ The same penalty for anyone trying to "muscle" jockeys or others into fixing races.

The committee draft also suggests:

✔ An interstate racing compact to create racetrack security forces for investigating wrongdoing, and interstate data banks for keeping tabs on racing racketeers.

✔ Conflict of interest laws to keep state officials from profiting from race track contributions, favors or investments.

✔ An end to "perfectas," "exactas" "trifectas" and other exotic forms of multiple betting where most betting abuses occur.

✔ Pre-race and post-race testing of horses for drugs, and standardized testing by all states.

Today's thoughts

"The law and the prophets were until John; since then the good news of the kingdom of God is preached, and every one enters it violently. But it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away, than for one dot of the law to become void." — Luke 16:16, 17.

The law, in its majestic equality, forbids the rich as well as the poor to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets, and to steal bread. — Anatole France, French novelist.

He who reigns within himself, and rules passions, desires, and fears, is more than a king. — John Milton, English poet.

The blackbirds

The mama blackbird in the tree
Became so very peeved at me,
She screamed and fussed and carred on.
Until she thought that I was gone,
But papa blackbird showed his ire
As he balanced high up on a wire,
He knew that I was still about
And his shrill voice exclaimed: "Get out."
So off I wandered out of sight
Then things again seemed quite all right,
I seemed to find it pretty hard
To be ordered out of my own yard,
So after while I ventured back,
Out of the tall flowers something black
Waddled, a tiny little bird,
Such loud chirping I've never heard,
It was so scared it hardly knew
Which way to go or what to do,
Its hiding place, it thought, I'd found,
Mama and papa weren't around
But they were not too far away,
What words they spoke I couldn't say,
Again upon the wire and tree
They really were abusing me,
"I'll be so very glad," thought I
"When that baby bird can fly,"
And very soon, a day or two
I did the things I had to do
Without the blackbirds getting mad
Calling me names I knew were bad,
The baby, no longer on the ground,
Was some place now, safe and sound,
It put me back a bit, you see,
But that was quite all right with me,
They were parents, concerned and good,
Doing exactly what they should,
The yard was really mine, I knew,
But to them it was theirs, too,
My yard and trees for them to share,
I'm happy that God put them there.

A conservative view

Sports, nature, honesty

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

SCRABBLE, VA. — Red Smith, dean of the nation's sportswriters, found himself in high company some months ago, in a radio talk show with Norman Podhoretz and Professor Thomas G. Bergin. I happened to be reading their colloquy, reprinted in Intellectual Digest, during a break in the televised Watergate hearings. Meanwhile, a blacksnake was eating some baby cowbirds. This may seem a disorganized lead, but it all adds up.

Kilpatrick

Podhoretz remarked upon the growing popularity of sports, and speculated that it "has something to do with the fact that sports remain one of the few areas of our national life relatively uncontaminated by the erosion of the standards."

Smith added a comment that struck home. "America yearns for an orderly world," he said, "in which the good is written down as .320 and the bad is written down as .110 and the umpire says the man is out or safe and it really is that way."

I was reading all this out on the deck, with Watergate still in mind, and found myself thinking that Smith's perceptive insight could be extended. The baseball averages tell us not only which hitters are good and which are bad; they also provide the comforting assurance that, here at least, the difference is recognized. The scorekeepers, in the holy name of equality, do not take 105 points from the .320 hitter and add them to the record of the .110 hitter in an effort to even things up.

Still more. A batting order is just that — an order, a reflection of the reasoned conclusion that hitters, over the season, will do pretty much what is expected of them. There is an honesty of values here, a respect for the natural hierarchy of excellence, an acceptance of the baseball world as it is.

Some of the same considerations that account for the resurgence of sports may also account for a resurgence of agrarianism. People no longer are moving to the great cities. The trend is precisely the reverse. Those who can't move all the way to open country are accepting half a loaf: They are migrating to suburbs whose names forlornly echo the next best thing — to subdivided hills, heights, cliffs, dales, manors and estates. Or they are piling into campers with the hope of finding truth and order on a country lane.

At about this point in my reflections, I glanced toward the post and rail fence, where we long ago mounted a box for bluebirds to nest in. To our dismay, the box was taken over this season by cowbirds, whose young on yesterday could be heard peeping inside. As I watched, a five-foot blacksnake suddenly rippled up the post, thrust his head through the hole in the box, killed the chicks, backed out and slithered away. It was horrible.

Yet I could not condemn the snake, or seize a hoe and go after him. This is the nature of snakes, to feed on fledgling birds. He was doing what was to be expected of him. This one accepts.

The horror of Watergate, it may be, lies in a terrible confusion of all these things at once. A year or so ago, it seemed reasonable to assume that at the highest levels of our government, the good would be written down like a batting order in the names of the President's most intimate associates. Here we would find, as the innocent L. Patrick Gray supposed, an honesty of values. Like good hitters, they would do what we had a right to expect from them.

But the values were not honest values. The most stunning moment of these hearings, for me, came when Jeb Stuart Magruder lifted his choir-boy eyes to Sen. Howard Baker. In the days after Watergate, asked the senator, did any of you ever consider simple honesty? No, said Magruder, we thought only of a cover-up; we feared honesty would defeat the President's bid for re-election. Monstrous!

Yet we may learn from the blacksnake, which followed his hunger up the cowbird post. We ought to learn from the seering experience of Watergate that men in high office are still lower than angels; that in the degree that such men are corruptible, power will corrupt them; that weak men, impelled by base motives, will devour the fledgling truth.

We are drawn to sports these days, as Podhoretz remarked, because here values are not eroded; and we are drawn to the country, where we learn from the inexorable truths of nature. But we are repelled by Watergate, where bad men wrote down good, and did not know the difference.

Summer of '73: where the action is

WASHINGTON — The big question on everybody's mind is: "What do we do with the kids this summer?"

Buchwald

The idea of a teen-ager spending his holiday with is parents is so revolting to the teen-ager that no parent dares bring it up. Camp for most young people is out, and it is a lucky father and mother who can get a flunking child to go to summer school.

A recent survey among the teen-age children of my friends revealed the following summer game plans:

A 15-year-old girl was going to drive across the United States in a Volkswagen with her closest friends, Sarah, Carl, Fred, Harriet, Lizabeth, Pat and George. When her parents asked their last names, their daughter said she didn't know.

A 16-year-old boy named Henry was going to Canada where he heard rock bands were short on drummers. When asked what part of Canada was short on drummers, he said he couldn't be sure until he got there.

A 17-year-old named Henrietta was going to hitchhike through Europe with her boyfriend Ziggy. She met Ziggy last summer when she was hitchhiking in Mexico with her former boyfriend Norman.

Fourteen-year-old Michael had a bicycle trip planned from Washington, D. C., to the Virgin Islands. When it was pointed out that he might have to cross a large body of water on his bike, Michael accused his parents of never letting him do anything on his own.

Sixteen-year-old Ethel and her twin sister, Eunice, accepted an invitation to sail from Bermuda to Southampton, England, with a fellow named Bob whom they met at the Grateful Dead concert at R.F.K. Stadium.

Josh, who celebrated his 15th birthday last week, was going to join a "bunch of kids" who had rented a farm in Maine. There were 18 kids involved and two bedrooms in the farmhouse. When I asked him if he planned to do some farming this summer, he looked at me as if I were out of my mind.

Mary Margaret said she had been invited to spend the summer with Suzy in Nantucket, Mass. A check with Suzy's parents by Mary Margaret's mother revaled that Suzy had told HER mother she was spending the summer with Mary Margaret's parents in North Carolina. As of this writing, the mystery of where Mary Margaret and Suzy are REALLY planning to spend the summer is still unsolved.

Eighteen-year-old Stu bought a motorcycle with a share of IBM stock his grandmother had given him and he said he was going. When I asked where he was going, he looked blank. "I'm just going, man, wherever the road takes me."

The only couple among my friends who seemed to have it made were the Parishes. By good fortune they persuaded a friend of theirs to give their son, Peter, a job on an oil rig moored 20 miles off Louisiana in the Gulf of Mexico. The friend promised he wouldn't let Peter off the rig until Labor Day.

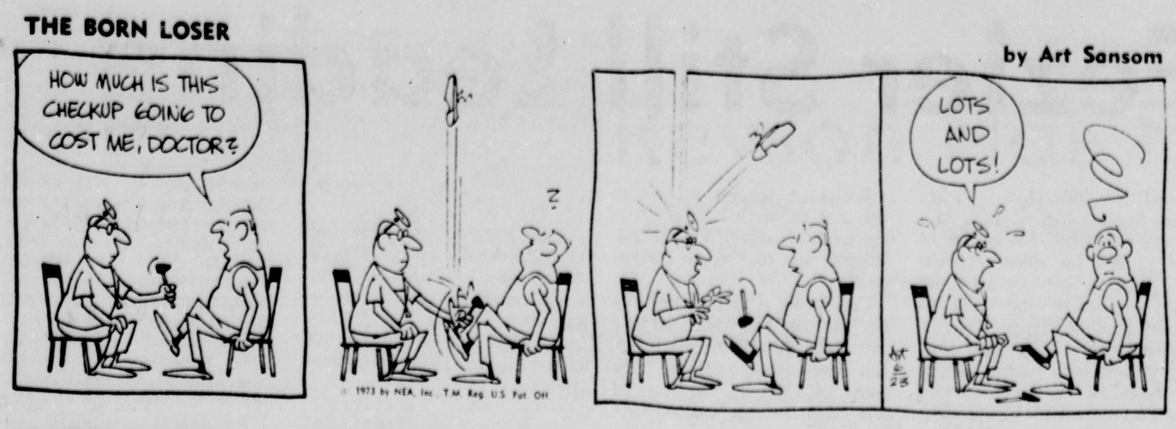

When the rest of our group heard about this, we all started searching for friends who owned oil rigs. We then discussed the possibility of a group of us leasing an oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico — or even the North Sea — where we could send our kids for the summer. Even if we didn't strike any oil, it would be a worthwhile investment.

A committee is now dickering with the Exxon Oil Co. for a likely site. If we find one, it will be the greatest summer that any parents in the United States could have.

Opening lead—♥ J

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South Analyzed the lead. It was the top of a suit headed by the jack. He Reviewed the bidding and saw that East needed to hold every missing face card to get to the 16 points needed for a no-trump opening. He Counted his losers and came to four: two in hearts; one in diamonds and one in clubs.

"How can I make this contract?" he asked mentally.

Then he played a low heart from dummy. Maybe East held just the doubleton ace-queen. That was not to be the case and South had to ruff the third heart.

He entered dummy with the ace of diamonds, led the 10 of spades and finessed against East's king. That finesse was a certainty. South knew where the king was. He continued with the nine. East ducked and now South stopped to do a little serious thinking. East was marked with the queen of clubs. Did he also hold the 10?

Maybe yes! Maybe no! Beggars can't be choosers so instead of leading dummy's last spade, South played the jack of clubs. He planned to let it ride but East covered with the queen. South went up with his ace and drew East's last trump.

Note that if South had played the third round of trumps before attacking clubs he would have been in the wrong hand.

Then South led another club; held his breath and finessed dummy's nine. The club loser vanished when the finesse worked.

bj loop faces problems

by vaughn hart
sports editor

Jim Vieth, statistician for the Central Missouri Ban Johnson Baseball League, mailed the following letter concerning the interior decay of the league to all team managers, umpires, coaches and league officials earlier this week.

Vieth, a former sports editor for a Jefferson City newspaper and now a restaurant owner in that city, has been instrumental in not only the CMBJ loop, but also a number of other central-Missouri athletic organizations. The letter contains much food for thought.

"I hesitate to write this letter, but I feel that I must say what I feel about some things in the league, and I feel that if this league is to survive, it must be said by someone.

"...First of all, I was glad to see us come up with a ten-team league, because I think that it helped travel-wise for most clubs and the closer the teams, the better the rivalries and the better the crowds should be.

"Any league, conference, etc. is only as good or as bad as the teams, people, officials and umpires who make it up. It's not easy to put together a league of basically independent teams, such as we have in the BJ league.

"I have been in the Ban Johnson league for about 10 years ... I have seen it at its best and at its worst. This year I felt it was on its way back, but now I don't know. Many things have drifted my way in the last two weeks. Stories of bad umpires, screaming managers, yelling by players, poor fan conduct ... just about everything.

"We need to take a long look at ourselves, both as an individual and as a league. Each man knows what makes him tick. Not all umpires are good ones ... in fact the good ones are few and far between, yet as long as a man hustles, knows the rules and tries to do a good job, he deserves your backing and your support. Not your criticism, or your abuse.

"Any man who has the guts to put on an umpire's outfit should be ready to do as good a job as possible ... he's the man in charge.

"No manager who has ever been around this game of baseball very long should not doubt that the job of being an umpire is a difficult one. There must be respect on each side of the fence ... the players, coaches, fans, etc. must have respect for the umpire and for his decisions.

"I have seen ice thrown at them (officials), I have seen them forced to fight their way out of a gym, hit with objects, called every name in the book, abused in every way ... yet some (fans) yell and say why don't we have good officials, why don't more guys take up this officiating business.

"Now, we look at the other side of it. The official is not always right ... he is human ... he makes mistakes. Just like the manager makes mistakes, just like the players make mistakes. The important thing must be that he is always hustling, always trying to be in the best position to call a play, always knowing the rules and not being afraid to stock to his guns, if he's right.

"...The players have to respect the umpire's judgement ... there is no other way.

"Umpires ... must do the job. If they can't stand the heat then they should not get near the fire. Officiating is not easy. It's, in fact, pretty damn tough. I've done a lot of it from baseball to track and you don't win any friends, but you get as close to the game as you can without actually playing and if you know what you're doing and if you enjoy it, it can be rewarding...

"...If this league is to survive we must upgrade our sportsmanship in it. From the top to the bottom. From directors, who sit in the stands and yell, to the manager, who screams on every call, to the umpire, who needs to improve, to the player, who can't stand to be called out, even if he is.

"We need better fan support ... and more help from the news media...

"...Let's take a long look at ourselves and see if we can't make this a league that is looked up to and not one that is being fitted for a burial.

"It takes everyone working together to have a good league and a good program for our young men ... it's not easy ... nobody likes to lose, yet someone must. We must play to win or we have cheated ourselves and the young men who are involved. Yet when its over, we must learn to live with a victory or a defeat ... Again the word 'respect' enters in. Win, lose or draw, if we respect our opponents, the umpires and other people who are part of the game, we'll all be winners and maybe a lot better because of it."

Merchants Blank Marshall, 10-0

By WARREN RIPLEY
Staff Sports Writer

The Sedalia Merchant's Ban Johnson squad collected seven extra-base hits enroute to 10-0 bombing of Marshall at Liberty Park Saturday night in Central Missouri Ban Johnson league action.

Sedalia pitcher Bob Pledge twirled the shutout for the Merchants' third victory of the season. Pledge allowed only three hits in the contest, which ran only seven innings due to the ten-run-lead rule, and pitched five consecutive hitless innings in one stretch.

The Sedalians amassed a total of 11 hits in the seven inning affair. Jim Coffelt, the Merchant's left-fielder, picked up two of the seven extra-base hits, with a triple in the third inning followed by a two-bagger in the fourth.

Terry Hudson, who plays for CMSU during the spring, picked up three hits in four trips to the plate, including a bunt-single which scored Steve Eck in the second inning on a squeeze play.

The Merchants jumped on the Marshall mound staff early as they picked up nine of their ten runs in the first four innings of play, scoring in each of the four.

The first inning was the big one for the Merchants as they rode the strength of three doubles from the bats of Hudson, Pete Green, and Dick Nash as well as a single by Pledge to notch four runs, all earned.

The Sedalians also collected three runs in the fourth on a walk, a single, a double, and a balk to take a commanding lead 9-0.

This marks only the third loss of the season for the second place Marshall team, which trailed western division leader Boonville by only one-half game before Saturday night, against seven victories.

Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday's Sedalia Democrat and Friday's Sedalia Capital that Elks defeated Millie's Dine-R-Ette Wednesday in Khoury League Softball action.

The score should have been Millie's Dine-R-Ette 24, Elks 14.

Fezler Still Leading

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Gritty little Forrest Fezler clung to a two-stroke lead, but some of the game's big guns wheeled into position Saturday after the third round of the $160,000 American Golf Classic.

Fezler, a 23-year-old tour sophomore who lost a nationally-televised heartbreaker to Lee Trevino earlier this season, matched par 72 on the 7,180 yards of the Firestone Country Club course and had a 54-hole total of 202, eight under par.

Tom Weiskopf, Gay Brewer and Australian Bruce Crampton nibbled away at his lead, which stood at four strokes when play started on the mild, sunny day.

Weiskopf and Brewer each tied the course record of 64 and moved up on the young man who is seeking his first tour title.

Weiskopf, winner of three titles and more than $130,000 in his last five starts, was at 204. Brewer was one stroke further back.

Crampton, a three-time winner this season, had a 68 and was tied with Brewer at 205, just three strokes off the pace going into the last 18 holes of this chase for the $32,000 first prize.

Gene Littler was next with a 66 for 207.

The 43-year-old Palmer was a very unhappy man after knocking himself out of it with a 71—210. Nicklaus, who had three consecutive bogeys and a double bogey on the front nine alone, just shrugged after his 73—212.

The letdown everyone had been expecting in the aftermath of his Open triumph last week at Oakmont, Pa., finally caught up with Miller. The skinny blond blew to a 78 and was out of contention at 215—13 strokes back.

Wimbledon Going; Stars Are Leaving

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Most of the world's top tennis stars were leaving England this weekend. Yet Wimbledon was ready to start Monday as usual.

The Association of Tennis Professionals has ripped horrendous gaps in the entry list for the men's singles, organizing a boycott by nearly 70 of its members.

There will be no Stan Smith to defend his title, no John Newcombe to bid for his fourth Wimbledon crown, no Arthur Ashe, Tom Gorman, Cliff Richey, Ken Rosewall or Tom Okker. They've all walked out.

But there will be the same jostling crowds, because all the seats for the center and No. 1 courts were sold months ago. There will be the traditional strawberries and cream on the lawns, and the usual display of summer fashions.

"And there will be a lot of good tennis," predicted Herman David, chairman of the All-England Club. "I am sure we shall have a fine tournament."

Nobody seriously doubted him. David has run Wimbledon for 20 years, and in that time the old tournament has survived more than one heavy blow and come up smiling.

Short of an earthquake, nothing could shatter Wimbledon. It's part of the English summer.

Ilie Nastase, flamboyant Romanian who lost to Smith in the final last year, defied the boycott and is playing. He is a strong favorite to win the title.

He will be challenged by only a minority of proven players. They include Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia, Roger Taylor of Britain, Alex Metreveli of Russia and Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill.

But there also is an army of lesser-ranked players, unknown to Wimbledon fans, with a chance to show what they can do.

From the United States come such hopefuls as Pancho Walthall of San Antonio, Tex., Chico Hagey of La Jolla, Calif., Bob Stock of Grundy Center, Iowa, Tom Karp and Greg Peebles of Los Angeles, and Mike Machette of Belvedere, Calif.

The walkout didn't affect the women's event. The top girls all are competing.

Revson Has Fastest Schaeffer 500 Time

MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — Peter Revson, a road racing expert, turned in a record four-lap qualifying speed of 190.648 miles per hour Saturday and won the pole position for the July 1 Schaeffer 500-mile auto race.

Driving a Gulf McLaren-Offy built in England, Revson also set a one-lap mark for the 2½-mile Pocono International Raceway of 191.367 m.p.h. as 21 drivers earned positions in the 33-car lineup for the $400,000 race.

Two top contenders were left at the gate when the first round of time trials ended. Gordon Johncock, winner of the rain-shortened, tragedy-marred Indianapolis race May 30, and 1971 Pocono Inaugural winner Mark Donohue had problems with their cars.

They will be among a dozen or so candidates who will make runs under the clock Sunday, the final day of trials.

Revson's speed was the best of the day, though three other drivers also bettered the marks set by Bobby Unser last year.

Unser's old marks, 189.473 m.p.h. for four laps and 190.210 for a single circuit, earned him the pole for the 1972 race, won by Joe Leonard, who also was among Saturday's qualifiers.

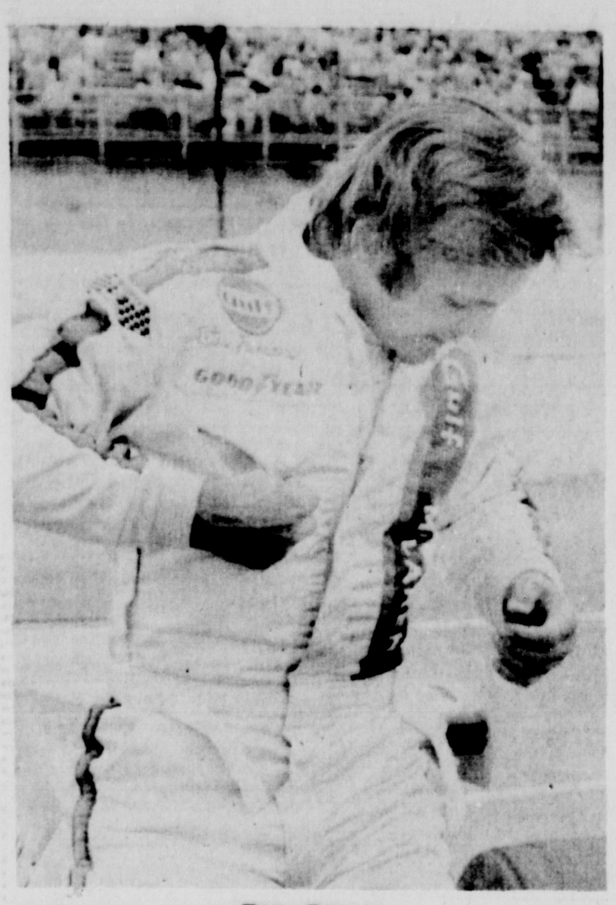

Beating Unser's speed of last year were Al Unser, whose 190.576 m.p.h. placed him in the middle of the first row; Mario Andretti, 190.164, good for the other front row spot, and Lloyd Ruby, who took the pole spot in the second row with a clocking of 189.913.

Bobby Unser, whose engine had failed him during the morning practice session, was the day's last qualifier. His crew, headed by ex-international star Dan Gurney, made a quick engine replacement and the 1968 Indianapolis winner beat the deadline with a speed of 189.613, good for the middle spot in the second row.

The Schaefer 500, third richest event in racing, will award more than $90,000 to the winner.

The 200-lap chase around a tri-cornered layout that is unique for its design is the first race to be run under new USAC rules that cut nine inches off the wings mounted on the rear of the open-cockpit, single-seater racers.

The changes, aimed at reducing the near 200 m.p.h. speeds of the cars, were adopted after one driver was killed and two others severely injured at Indianapolis three weeks ago.

Grid Stars As Musicians

DALLAS (AP) — What do football and concert music have in common?

"They're the same emotionally. You have to put yourself out and on the line, and it makes you aware of personal failure," says Mike Reid, defensive tackle of the Cincinnati Bengals.

Gone are the days of the stereotyped football player—loud and boisterous with close-cropped hair.

He has been replaced by men like Reid and Rayfield Wright, offensive tackle for the Dallas Cowboys, who can express themselves in ways other than by slamming opponents to the turf.

Reid is 6-5 and 255 pounds. Wright is 6-6, 258.

They were listed as featured performers with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra Saturday night at one of the pop concerts given each weekend during the summer in the Fair Park bandshell.

Reid, who began playing the piano at the age of five, "eleven years before I participated in organized athletics," was the guest pianist.

Wright made his debut, reading selected poems about Abraham Lincoln by Eric Copeland.

"I heard Curt Mosher, public relations director for the Cowboys, discussing the idea of someone reading poetry for the Symphony Orchestra one day, and decided that I would like to do it," Wright said. "It sounded different and interesting."

Reid said there is a "similarity in the signals called by a coach and ones issued by a conductor in that they both control the situation.

"You could say that after every game, win or lose, I have to get to a piano in order to unwind."

NFLPA-Rozelle Session Said To Be 'Instructive'

CHICAGO (AP) — Pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle went eyeball to eyeball with representatives of the National Football League Players Association Saturday with no concrete results.

Each side admitted that the more than four-hour closed door confrontation—the first between Rozelle and the players—was instructive but a spokesman for the players said the commissioner made no commitments.

Rozelle and Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, said the question and answer session, which was described by one person inside the room as hostile at times, was informational.

Rozelle declined to disclose the drug program he plans to propose to the owners Monday which allegedly includes a urine analysis as a deterrent against abuse.

"I told them I am still studying the whole program," said Rozelle after the meeting. "We're not prepared yet to say what we're going to do."

Garvey said the player representatives gave Rozelle what he described as a very candid explanation of their views on drug use.

"The players told him that they did not feel there is a hard drug problem in the NFL," he said. "We also said that the charge of wide use of amphetamines is greatly exaggerated."

Garvey said the players recommended a joint committee of owners and players be created and Rozelle agreed to take the suggestion back to the owners.

Mark Twain's Classic 'Tom Sawyer'
OPENS WED. AT FOX

Johnny Whitaker Is 'Tom Sawyer' In Film Of Twain's Classic

Johnny Whitaker has been a professional actor for more than three-quarters of his life, which qualifies him as a veteran performer. However, Johnny recently celebrated his 13th birthday, and within a short time he will probably be acclaimed as one of the most popular pre-adolescent performers of our time. Johnny is the title-role star of "Tom Sawyer," a musical film adaptation of Mark Twain's beloved classic, which is being presented by Reader's Digest.

An Arthur P. Jacobs Production, the film stars, with Johnny, Celeste Holm, Jeff East and Warren Oates. It will open Wed. at the Fox Theatre.

Academy Award-winners Richard M. Sherman and Robert B. Sherman wrote the music, lyrics and screenplay.

That Johnny is a highly gifted actor is not news to the millions of televiewers who dialed his weekly performance with Brian Keith on "Family Affair" through six successful seasons. But he also has a way with a song, as is demonstrated in "Tom Sawyer." His emergence as a popular young star has not dulled his natural charm. While more than 1,000 youngsters were interviewed and several dozen actually screen-tested for the role, there was unanimity in the final selection of Johnny and the decision to grant him top billing in the lavish color production filmed on location in Missouri.

Johnny's most recent feature film was Walt Disney's "Napoleon and Samantha."

The youngster made his professional debut in a TV commercial shortly after he turned three, and has been busy ever since. He brings to his work a natural poise lacking in many adult and most child actors, plus a professional cool born of long experience and theatrical discipline.

After doing commercials he became a regular on "General Hospital," and guested on such shows as "Bonanza," "Gunsmoke," "Lancer," "The Virginian," "Green Acres" and "Bewitched." In 1966 he made his motion picture debut in UA's "The Russians Are Coming The Russians Are Coming," at which time he met Brian Keith, one of the stars of the film, and that resulted in his "Family Affair" TV role.

AL Roundup

KC Comes Back To Top Texas, 8-7

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Paul Schaal capped a four-run rally in the ninth inning with a runscoring single, leading the Kansas City Royals to a wild 8-7 victory over the Texas Rangers Saturday.

The Rangers had scored four runs themselves in the top of the ninth to take a 7-4 lead.

Amos Otis singled home the first run of the Royal ninth and John Mayberry tied the game 7-7 with a two-run double. Ed Kirkpatrick bunted for a base hit and Lou Piniella was walked to load the bases before Schaal singled to left for the game-winner.

New York 3, Detroit 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Bobby Murcer slammed a three-run homer and Sam McDowell and Lindy McDaniel combined on a five-hitter, leading the first-place New York Yankees to a 3-2 victory over the faltering Detroit Tigers Saturday in a nationally-televised game.

The Yankees, who started play 1½ games ahead of Milwaukee in the American League's East Division, stretched their winnning streak to six games. The Tigers have dropped five in a row and trail by five games.

Murcer drilled his 12th home run and first since June 8 well over the 344-foot sign in right field with one out in the third inning following singles by Roy White and Matty Alou.

Oakland 14, Chicago 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Reggie Jackson and Deron Johnson each drove in three runs to lead the Oakland A's and Jim "Catfish" Hunter to a 14-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday.

The A's ripped into starter Eddie Fisher, 6-6, and his successors for 19 hits and locked up the game with 10 runs in the first three innings. Hunter cruised to his 10th victory in 13 decisions.

Bert Campaneris opened the game with a single and stole his 15th base. Bill North walked. Campaneris scored from second and North went all the way to third on a passed ball.

California 3, Minnesota 1

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Mike Epstein's in the 11th inning powered the California Angels to a 3-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Epstein delivered his game-winning blast with two out after a single by Jerry Davanon.

The Twins, held scoreless for seven innings, broke Bill Singer's spell with a run in the eighth on Harmon Killebrew's single that tied the game 1-1.

Fans Injured in Mishap

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An escalator at Royals Stadium malfunctioned just as fans were leaving the Kansas City-Texas Rangers baseball game Saturday afternoon and at least 31 persons were injured.

Four ambulances were dispatched to the stadium, located at the east edge of Kansas City. A survey of area hospitals indicated there were no serious injuries. Most of the injured were youngsters.

The injured were taken to several hospitals in the area. A survey of the hospitals indicated no serious injuries, although a spokesman at St. Luke's Hospital in Kansas City said some persons might be kept overnight for observation.

A police dispatcher said several persons who received minor injuries declined care at the scene, saying they would seek their own doctors.

A police spokesman at the stadium said the escalator appeared to gain speed suddenly and that an operator, seeing something was wrong, turned it off. He said the escalator stopped and several persons were thrown forward by the momentum.

The accident happened about 4:40 p.m. as fans were leaving the game in which Kansas City defeated Texas 8-7.

The stadium, which opened in April, is served by four escalators, two leading to the upper deck and two to an intermediate deck.

The malfunctioning escalator was the one leading to the upper deck on the west side. Bob Wirz, the public relations director for the team, said neither he nor stadium engineer George Humphrey could say immediately what caused the escalator to gain speed. Wirz said representatives of Montgomery Escalator Co., which installed the escalators, had arrived to inspect the malfunctioning lift.

Mayer Puts Stanford Atop Tennis Standings

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)— Sandy Mayer captured the singles crown and was victorious in the doubles, powering Stanford University to the team title in the 89th annual National Collegiate Athletic Association tennis championship finals Saturday.

The 21-year-old Mayer, who is the U. S. amateur champion, downed Raul Ramirez, Mexican Davis Cup star attending the University of Southern California, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4, in an hour and 20 minutes.

Mayer then returned with teammate Jim Delaney to defeat North Carolina's Fred McNair and Richard McKee, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, in the doubles final.

The doubles decision was a toss-up until the Stanford pair broke McKee's service near the end of the third set.

Stanford finished the six-day tourney with 33 points. USC was second with 29 and the University of California at Los Angeles came in third with 25. Houston and Southern Methodist University tied for fourth with 15 apiece.

In the singles match Mayer broke Ramirez's service midway through the second set. He quickly closed out the set and easily won the last set.

Stearns Only Unanimous To All-Big Eight Team

KANSAS CITY (AP) — John Stearns, a senior catcher at the University of Colorado, was the only unanimous selection on the all Big Eight baseball team, announced by the conference Saturday.

Stearns, selected in the first round by Philadelphia in the baseball free agent draft, hit .400 in league play and took the conference home run and runs batted in titles. The Denver senior received votes from all seven opposing coaches. Coaches could not vote for their own players.

Besides Stearns other repeat selections were outfielder Joe Simpson and pitcher Jackson Todd of Oklahoma, conference champions, and shortstop Mike Cross of Oklahoma State.

In addition to Cross, other Cowboys named to the team were Dan Massari, first baseman, and Charles Meyers, second baseman. Mike Umfleet, Oklahoma third baseman, rounded out the infield.

Others selected were Bill Severns, Oklahoma outfielder, Bob Munson, Nebraska outfielder, and Andy Replogle, Kansas State pitcher.

The conference batting champion, Kenny King of Oklahoma, who hit .424, failed to make the first team, making the second squad at first base. The only other close vote was at third base where Umfleet edged Mike Curran of Iowa State.

First Team

C — John Stearns, Colorado; 1B — Dan Massari, Oklahoma State; 2B — Charles Meyers, Oklahoma State; SS — Mike Cross, Oklahoma State; 3B — Mike Umfleet, Oklahoma; OF — Bob Munson, Nebraska; Joe Simpson, Oklahoma; Bill Severns, Oklahoma; P — Jackson Todd, Oklahoma; Andy Replogle, Kansas State.

Second Team

C — Glen Bannister, Oklahoma; 1B — Kenny King, Oklahoma; 2B — Kem Mosely, Kansas State; SS — Mike Ford, Oklahoma; 3B — Mike Curran, Iowa State; OF — Dale Kamibayashi, Colorado; Lanny Phillips, Oklahoma, Steven Anson, Kansas State; P — David Lewis, Oklahoma State, Ryan Kurosaki, Nebraska.

Moore Takes First, Sets New Mile Record

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Sedalia's team in the Amateur Athletic Association Missouri Valley District Junior Olympics produced several medalists here Saturday.

John Moore turned in a record-breaking first place performance in the junior boys division mile run with a time of 5:02.0. The old record was 5:06.8.

The bantam girls division saw Stacy Schulz clear 3'6" to tie for second in the high jump competition.

Fred Washington ran the 120 yard high hurdles in 14.6, a record breaking time, but got only third place. The winner of the race was clocked at 14.1. Smith-Cotton's high hurdles record is 14.9.

The Sedalia entry in the mile relay came home with a third place medal after producing a 46.7 time. Making up the team are two Sedalia youths, Sid Whitfield and Leonard Butler along with Larry Baile and Lawrence Adams, both of Warrensburg.

Steve Fischer ran a 9:57.4 two-mile good for fourth place in that event.

The meet, which saw several other records broken, was held in 92-degree heat.

Luxury

In the year 2022, a spoonful of strawberry jam is an unbelievable and almost forgotten luxury, and for Charlton Heston and Edward G. Ratify Agreement For 2,800 Workers

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Members of United Rubber Workers Local 307 ratified a new agreement covering about 2,800 plant workers at the Goodyear plant Friday. But a vote on an agreement covering about 200 warehouse workers resulted in a tie.

The vote on the plant workers proposal was 624-602, local president George Amis said. The pact covers a three-year period.

This Week in Business

Almost Everything More Costly

NEW YORK (AP) — Costs for food, clothing and gasoline were up sharply again in May, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics announced this past week.

The First National Bank of Chicago touched off a new round of increases in the prime rate, the interest rate charged by banks to their largest and most credit-worthy customers.

The Chicago bank raised the rate to 7¾ per cent, a not unexpected move, and within two days a number of other banks had followed. The latest rise came less than two weeks after banks moved the rate up to 7½ per cent.

The Labor Department said the cost of living in May went up six-tenths of 1 per cent. That works out to an annual rate of 7.2 per cent on a seasonally unadjusted basis.

Observers pointed out that while the climb in living costs during May equaled the April climb on a seasonally adjusted basis, it was slightly lower on an unadjusted basis. The annual rate for April on an unadjusted basis was 8.4 per cent.

The department said in a separate report that purchasing power of workers had declined in May because of the price increases.

Food accounted for a substantial rise in the cost of living. The price of food increased nine-tenths of 1 per cent in May to a level of 14.5 per cent above a year ago.

Earlier the Agriculture Department had reported that despite President Nixon's 60-day price freeze and expected freezes in the coming Phase 4, food prices will average 12 per cent higher this year.

The May consumer price index for all items was at 131.5, 5.5 per cent above a year ago. This meant that it cost a family $13.15 in May to buy a variety of goods and services that would have cost $10 in 1967.

In its report on purchasing power, the Labor Department said that after-tax take-home pay of the average worker was $125.12 in May, 87 cents higher than April and $14.51 higher than a year ago.

But the department said prices offset the monthly gain so that on a seasonally adjusted basis, real take-home pay of workers declined four-tenths of 1 per cent from April.

Meat prices were slightly down in May after huge jumps earlier in the year. But the government said the decline was less than usual for this time of year.

May prices did not reflect the new price freeze, which began in June and will be first reported in July.

Wage-price stabilization officials said this week that the 60-day price freeze might be lifted in some industries and Phase 4 controls put into effect on a piecemeal basis in others before the 60-day freeze is over.

Overseas, the dollar strengthened somewhat in Europe after hitting record lows the previous week.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others..

FOR FATHER MALCOLM BOYD, author of "Are You Running with Me, Jesus?"

Is prayer essentially asking God for something? And is God a person, a force, or what?—Leonore Manners, Van Nuys, Calif.

● Prayer, for me, is not asking God for either small or large favors or great miracles. It's wanting to place my life in God's life. There are people who feel that God is a man, a woman, white, black, a busy heavenly switchboard operator in the sky, or a hating creature who runs torture chambers. In my own experience, God is the Spirit of loving instead of either killing or indifference, of sacrifice for people instead of exploiting them, of justice in the place of persecution or any other kind of evil. In Jesus I find God's sensitivity, involvement, nearness and intense caring.

FOR KAREN BLACK, actress

I read somewhere that you believe in reincarnation. Is that true?—T. K. A., Wenatchee, Wash.

● Yes. Totally. I think the next time I come back it will probably be as a housewife!

FOR SEN. JOHN L. McCLELLAN (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Criminal Laws and Procedures

How much legal wiretapping and bugging is the Government visiting on its citizens?—N. O'Ryan, Rock Island, Ill.

● During 1972, there were 855 orders for intercepts issued by Federal and state judges, and 2,861 arrests flowed from the information obtained. So far, 402 convictions have already resulted, and more are expected. This is compelling evidence of the effectiveness of wiretapping and electronic surveillance in combating organized crime.

FOR SEN. GEORGE S. McGOVERN

My brother-in-law claims that the poor don't suffer so much from rising food prices because of a cost-of-living escalator in the food-stamp program. Is he right?—L. A. J., Grand Forks, N.D.

● Inflation hurts everyone, but it hurts the poor most of all. The current food-stamp program provides for an annual cost-of-food adjustment in the program's allotment. Anyone who has been following this year's price rises since December, never mind before, knows this is no longer adequate.

FOR JOEY HEATHERTON

Joey is an odd name for a girl. Is it your real name?—Lee Smith, Paterson, N.J.

● I was born Davenie Johanna Heatherton and for practical purposes my name was abbreviated to Doey. But because my younger brother Dick couldn't pronounce it as a youngster, it was changed to Joey—and it stuck.

FOR LESLIE UGGAMS

I understand you're a boxing fan. True?—L. D. C., Rye., N.Y.

● I've been a fight fan all my life—because of my father. Whenever there was a fight, he left the radio turned on and I listened too. His excitement was contagious. Besides, there are few fields in which black people can be stars. Fighting is one of them. So whenever there was a big fight involving a black man, the whole neighborhood would listen to it and then we would have a great big party if our man won.

FOR CLEVELAND AMORY, television reviewer

How many TV sets do you own? Do you ever watch more than one at a time?—Mrs. R. C. Bain, Hot Springs, Ark.

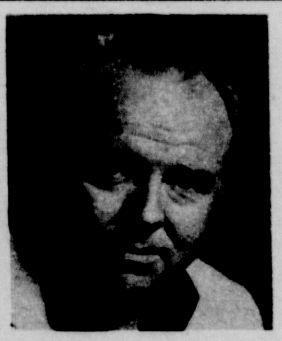

● Only when my three favorites, "All in the Family," "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," or "The Waltons" run against what I'm reviewing! I have three sets in my house, but I think trying to watch two programs at once does justice to neither. The networks usually show me three episodes of a series. I figure they're the ones they think are best. So I always pick up at least one episode on the air.

FOR JACK LORD, star of "Hawaii Five-O"

Sometimes you speak Hawaiian words on your show. Do you know the Hawaiian language, or do you just read the script?—Carol Allen, Ontario, Calif.

● I know a little Hawaiian. I wouldn't say I'm fluent in the language, but you can't live in Hawaii very long without picking up a lot of words and phrases.

FOR CARROLL O'CONNOR of "All in the Family"

Are you quitting your series? If so, why?—Kathy White, Midland Park, N.J.

● I must apologize for false rumors that have been going around about my quitting the show. I love the series and all those connected with it. I plan to continue in the role of Archie Bunker, and I hope you are glad to hear this news.

In Darkest Africa With My Loving, Lovable, Slightly Absentminded Husband

"I don't think he's quite as absentminded as some people have made out, but it is true that when our girls Kelly and Judy where born, he came to the hospital to bring me home, and then drove off without me."

By Mrs. Jimmy Stewart
As told to Bernice McGeehan

It was his wife Gloria who talked Jimmy into trading in his hunting rifle for a camera. This family snapshot shows the Stewarts on safari.

When my husband Jimmy Stewart was a small boy living in Indiana, Pa., he made plans to go on a safari to Africa. He was going to go with his father, he said. He read everything he could find on the subject. He even went down to his father's hardware store and picked out some iron bars for the cage he was planning to build. His father went along with all this good-naturedly, and even went so far as to get on the train with Jimmy. But when the train got to Atlantic City, Mr. Stewart called a halt to the expedition.

"But I haven't seen Africa yet!" protested Jim. "You haven't seen Atlantic City yet either!" said his father.

So Jimmy had to be content with that. But he never forgot his boyhood dream. When he finally did make that long-delayed safari, I went with him.

Like Jimmy, I too have always loved animals. In fact, when we first met, I had a beautiful big German police dog named Bello, who very nearly broke up our romance before it got started. Jimmy and I had met at dinner at the home of mutual friends one night, and he had asked to escort me home. I agreed and at my door gave him my key. But when he opened it, Bello took one look at this strange man and went straight for his jugular. Nothing daunted Jimmy persisted in his campaign to woo us—me with dining and dancing, and Bello with bits of steak smuggled home from Chasen's restaurant—and he managed to win the whole Gloria McLean package—me, my dog and my two little boys Ronald and Michael (by a former marriage) in one fell swoop. We were married in 1950, amid dire predictions that no one who had been a bachelor as long as Jimmy could ever survive such instant familyhood. But he could and he did, and after our twin girls were born in 1951, we all lived happily together with Bello and other assorted pets.

But we never forgot our dream to go on safari, and we finally did for the first time in 1961.

The African countryside is beautiful, the air clear as wine, the animals overwhelmingly beautiful in their natural environment. We went back again the following year and bagged several trophies of which we are still very proud. Jimmy got a very large rare eland, and I got a water buffalo and an elephant, and those trophies hang on the walls of our den today, along with some others (including a pretty scruffy-looking squirrel that Jimmy shot when he was a youngster).

But in spite of the thrills and excitement of those trips, it became an emotionally wrenching experience for me. I dreaded having to shoot those beautiful creatures, and I cried every time I did. Finally I began to wonder if just tracking them down and shooting them with a camera might not be just as rewarding. I talked it over with Jimmy. He was not having the same conflicts I was, having been a hunter all his life, but he could readily understand how I felt, and he was more than willing to try a photographic safari. And so the next time we went, we took Nikon cameras instead of guns—and it was wonderful!

Jimmy loves to go on safari for another reason too, which seems to be peculiarly his. He thinks it helps him concentrate! You see, my husband has a celebrated tendency toward absentmindedness. I don't think he's quite as absentminded as some people have made out, but it is true that when our girls Kelly and Judy were born, he came to the hospital to bring me home, and then drove off without me. The nurse was outraged, but I just thought it was funny. "Wait about five minutes," I advised her, "and the phone will ring."

I knew my man pretty well by then. I'd been in the hospital for about six weeks following the birth of the twins, because of complications, and Jimmy had been in the habit of coming in to visit me every day. So on this day as usual, he came by, picked up a load of flowers and gifts, took them down to the car, got in and drove off. Halfway home he stopped at a photography shop, and when he walked in the proprietor said cheerily, "Well, hello there, Mr. Stewart! And how is Mrs. Stewart today?" "Oh," said Jim, absently fingering some new equipment, "she's just . . . oh my gawsh!" And he spun around and raced for the phone. When he called, I was placidly waiting. The nurse couldn't believe it.

However, Jimmy is quite right when he says a safari sharpens your powers

In Darkest Africa With Jimmy Stewart

of observation and concentration. If you don't keep your mind on what's going on, you may not be around to try it again.

Jim discovered that the first time he went out with our hunter-guide Bunny Ray to hunt leopard. The two men hung a freshly killed gazelle in an acacia tree as a lure, constructed a blind, set up their guns and sat down to wait. And then Jimmy decided to read a book—not exactly the best thing to do in a jungle, as he discovered moments later when he looked up from his book and right into the eyes of a mother lion regarding him steadily from less than six feet away. Jimmy paled, and, as he said later, "I didn't really need to have Bunny hiss in my ear, 'Don't move!' I couldn't! I was frozen with terror."

Bunny began to waggle first one finger and then another very very slowly until he was moving and stretching all over, being elaborately careful not to make any sudden sharp moves. Finally Mama Lion got bored with the whole thing and ambled off.

"A few days later Jimmy was out tracking through the bush again, not really paying attention to where he was going, and he stepped right on top of a cobra."

That was frightening enough, but a few days later Jimmy was out tracking through the bush again, not really paying attention to where he was going, and he stepped right on top of a cobra. Not unnaturally, the cobra didn't like that one bit. It reared up to its full height, flared its hood and stared Jim in the face. Jimmy streaked back to camp. There, Bunny informed us both that even though snakes are deaf, they can usually feel the vibration of your footsteps as you approach and scurry out of your path. Jimmy must have been walking too softly. Since that bit of information, we now tramp through the jungle like King Kong!

Jimmy boned up on how to handle snakes after that. One day as we were potting along over the plains in our Land Rover he was reading a manual on what to expect if you do get bitten. But when he got to the lines . . . "When you become paralyzed from the hips down and your eyes begin to bleed," he slammed the book shut. "Gloria," he said to me earnestly, "if my eyes begin to bleed . . . don't tell me! I don't want to know!"

Today, we are still very much involved with animals. I'm on the board of the Los Angeles Zoo. We share our bed and board with two golden retrievers, St. Simba and Mr. Mean (Bello having gone to his reward long ago). And our daughter Kelly, who with the rest of our children has come on several of our safaris, has become so involved with Africa that she is now going on archaeological digs in Lake Rudolph in Northern Kenya with the famed Richard Leakey.

One of our family safaris stands out in my mind particularly. It means a great deal to me. Our son Ronnie, who was killed in Vietnam in 1969, was with us then, as well as Michael and the girls, and we had planned for the trip all year. But when the time came for us to leave, Jimmy's shooting schedule on "The Flight of the Phoenix" was running overtime, and he couldn't leave with us.

We were all terribly disappointed. Jimmy was so upset that he finally made up his mind to join us, if only for a day. Sure enough, Jimmy worked late one night, drove directly to the airport, flew all night long to Rome (and sat up from talking shop with the pilot when he should have been sleeping) and arrived in Rome so exhausted he was beginning to wonder if this was such a good idea. But the moment he stepped on the Alitalia plane bound for Nairobi he relaxed completely. There on the wall next to his seat, was a plaque stating that the Pope had flown this same plane on his first trip to the Holy Land. If it was good enough for the Pope, Jimmy figured, it was good enough for a Scotch-Irish Presbyterian—and he slept all the way to Nairobi.

He landed and jeeped up to our base camp, where we had a joyous—and fa—reunion, had a family picture taken for our Christmas card ("That," Jimmy told me deadpan, "is the only reason I came") and then all flew back together to London. There the rest of us collapsed, but Jimmy immediately got on another plane, flew nonstop to Hollywood and, just as he had promised, walked on the set at 9 a.m. the following morning, fully made up and ready for work.

He had flown a total of 20,000 miles in less than five days just to keep a promise and spend a few hours with the children and me.

I think that's pretty nice. And not the least bit absentminded.

Smoking.
What are you going to do about it?

Many people are against cigarettes. You've heard their arguments.

And even though we're in the business of selling cigarettes, we're not going to advance arguments in favor of smoking.

We simply want to discuss one irrefutable fact.

A lot of people are still smoking cigarettes. In all likelihood, they'll continue to smoke cigarettes and nothing anybody has said or is likely to say is going to change their minds.

Now, if you're one of these cigarette smokers, what are you going to do about it? You may continue to smoke your present brand. With all the enjoyment and pleasure you get from smoking it. Or, if 'tar' and nicotine has become a concern to you, you may consider changing to a cigarette like Vantage.

(Of course, there is no other cigarette quite like Vantage.)

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

We want to be frank. Vantage is not the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you can buy. But it may well be the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you will enjoy smoking.

Vantage. It's the only cigarette that gives you so much taste with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

We suggest you try a pack.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Filter: 11 mg. "tar", 0.8 mg. nicotine, Menthol: 11 mg. "tar", 1.0 mg. nicotine—av. per cigarette, FTC Report Feb. 73.

From Paris: How to Copy the French Designers

Genevieve Antoine-Dariaux

"Pants are straight and wide, easy for at-home seamstresses to copy. Many are even mounted with elasticized waistbands—and what's simpler to make than that?"

By Genevieve Antoine-Dariaux
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

French couturiers are strange birds. Normally, one would think that the expansion of home-sewing activities would give them such nightmares that they would return to more elaborate techniques, as a matter of self-protection against the needle-and-thread do-it-yourselfers. But no, I have found all over Paris, in the most expensive houses, charming and simple designs that even a "debutante" in sewing can cope with easily.

SUITS. Jackets are mostly modeled after the cardigan style; many of them don't close in front. They either hang loose straight from the neck, without any buttons, or are fastened only with a belt, bathrobe style. When the jackets are classic, they are short; some even look like the fitted, waist-length spencer style. Battle jackets are still in fashion (some designers have tried to make them longer than the waist, but that's a hideous line).

DRESSES. Dresses are straight, buttoned sheaths or pleated shirts, their collars tied in a soft bow (see sketches 1 and 2). Both are much easier to make than a real shirt neck.

Of course, there is a much bigger variety in evening dresses. Many are pleated or fluid, and some are transparent. (Modest girls have found a way to cope with transparent tops; they simply wear beaded bras.)

PANTS. Pants are straight and wide, easy for at-home seamstresses to copy. Many are even mounted with elasticized waistbands—and what's simpler to make than that?

BLOUSES. Blouses are bloused, and they, too, are elasticized at the waist. Some of them cover the hips (sketch 3), and some stop one or two inches from the waist, like a bolero (sketch 4).

COATS. Coats are made in reversible cardigan style. Some are large with wide lapels and others are straight, collarless and belted.

SLEEVES. Most sleeves stop at the elbow. But there is also a return to the sleeveless dress, which is so easy to make. One can see plenty of bouffant sleeves with flounces coming from the shoulder and the inside of the cuff (sketch 5) or from a loose bracelet (sketch 6). Some sleeves at Ungaro are raglans that start from a flat collar around the neck (sketch 7) or from a square, peasant-style neck (sketch 8).

BELTS. Most belts are very narrow. Sometimes two belts are worn—the narrow one in the middle of the larger one (sketch 9). At Dior, the belt becomes extra-wide—midriff-width—fastened at the side or the back by a zipper (sketch 10). And all over town one sees belts that are nothing more than a ribbon or a stiffened piece of material with two loops tied with a string (sketch 11).

DECOLLETES. Strapless is coming back (see sketches 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16), and the halter neck is not as popular as in the last three seasons. At Lanvin, where the line is very supple, the front of the blouse is gathered in a string that crosses in the back (sketch 17).

COLORS. White and beige are the most popular, but as usual there's a lot of navy, and some very bright tones as well as some pastel shades. Black is not very popular except on prints. Those are mostly florals or geometric patterns in art-deco style.

ACCESSORIES. Hats are mannish felts or large simple straws devoid of any trimming. Also, short gloves are back on the streets.

CONCLUSION. Fashion has been running so fast these last years that it is like a skier who takes a deep breath and looks at the scenery before plunging again down the slopes. Haute couture might soon get tired of its present rest and classicism and go back to drapes and intricate cut. But at least for this year, you can be in style with just a little skill and some help from your sewing machine.

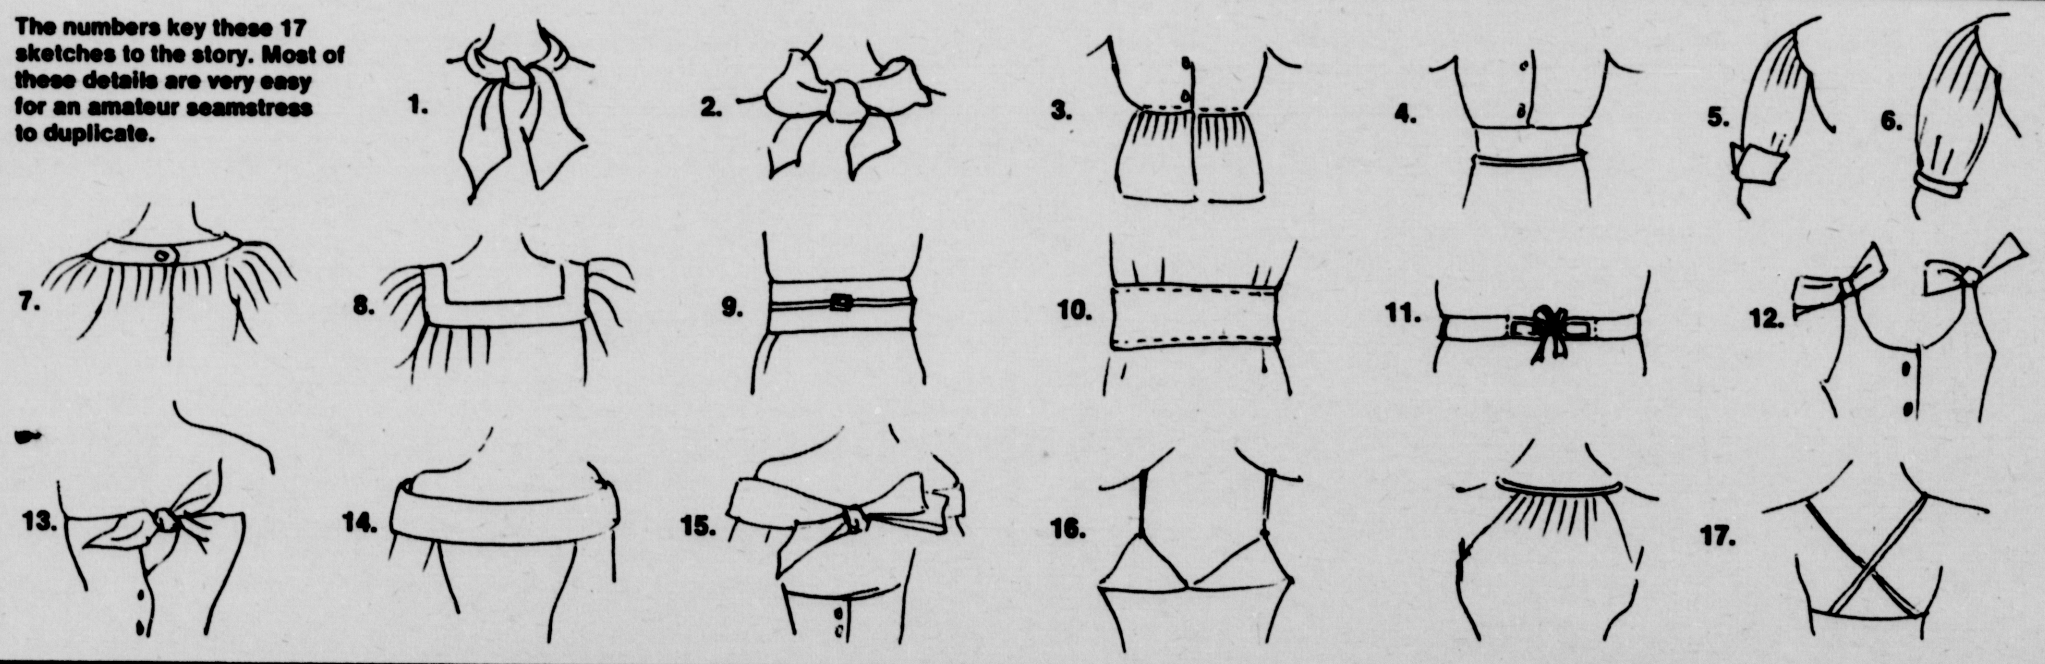

Hats are large and mannish, devoid of trim. And simple, classic outfits have at least another year to live.

Blouses are bloused and elasticized at the waist—as are the pants: a cinch for the amateur seamstress.

COLONIAL PATCHWORK QUILT KIT

People have loved quilts since Colonial times when they were pieced together from scraps. We have achieved the charm of those early quilts by coordinating bold colors and old-fashioned prints. Our shortcuts make seaming and quilting easier. Blocks are 7 inches. We used the tufting method of securing pieced top, interlining and lining together (interlining, lining and dust ruffle are not in kit). Kit contains 165 patches and easy-to-follow instructions. We used 154 patches for 98-by-77-inch top (below); the rest were quartered for the throw pillow. Quilt fits single or double bed—more dust ruffle shows on the double. Batches of patches may also be ordered—to make a skirt, a shawl or an original design.

Why Do People Send So Many Memos?

Drowning in paperwork? Though there are endless suggestions on how to lessen the flow, most efficiency efforts have limited success because they ignore the hidden human reasons involved. Once you do understand what's motivating your fellow employee's paper output, you may be able to give that person the recognition or reassurance he's seeking, and so reduce his need to put everything into writing. Even if you can't alter his behavior, understanding it might help you decide which memos and reports require attention and which need only a glance. In many instances, people put their words on paper for a variety of reasons: to attract the boss's attention; to protect themselves against future questions; to impress others with their competence; and to flex their egos and announce, "I'm in charge of this project." Unfortunately, modern duplicating machines make it possible for everyone to receive a copy of all these ego displays!

The Diet Watch

Try to Make Eating a "Pure Experience"

The habit of eating at the same time you are carrying on another activity —watching TV or playing cards— "triggers" your appetite whenever you're in that situation again, say psychiatrists. "It's a signal," as one psychiatrist explains it. "For instance, you associate watching TV with eating certain foods, if you've gotten into the habit of doing both together. So you eat not out of hunger, but out of habit." Dr. Leonard S. Levitz, Ph.D. at the Department of Psychiatry, University of Pennsylvania, suggests that people in this bind should try to break such associations by thinking of eating as a "pure experience"—that is, not associated with any other activity. When you do break an eating-and-TV chain, or other activity-and-eating chains, you narrow your eating down to mealtimes, thereby lowering your caloric intake enormously.

YOUR NERVES CAN CURE THEMSELVES

once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...

If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms:

constant nervousness and over-irritation... indecision... depression... loss of confidence in yourself and others... feelings of unreality... overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts...

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart... that your identity is dissolving... or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

"...helped me so much and released me from the particular hell I have been living in since my breakdown six years ago."

"I am amazed at the progress I have made in such a comparatively short time."

"It would be no exaggeration to add that your book saved my life."

"The method you give for cure of nervous conditions is so effective—so simple."

"The great reassurance you give about the distressing physical symptoms of a disturbed nervous system is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from your book."

"You cannot possibly imagine what a relief it is to be able to view life normally again, instead of fear-panic all the while."

"I cannot describe the emotion I felt to find, at last, someone who really understood the problem, and to hear her say the condition can be cured.... If only this understanding person had the time to take all sufferers under her wing."

"I would like you to know that my nervous condition has so greatly improved through the advice gleaned from your most precious and invaluable book... that all symptoms have now disappeared and I rarely need Librium or sleeping capsules."

"My physician is amazed at my progress and of course I showed him your book which he borrowed and read thoroughly and is now recommending."

"My wife has made a vast improvement. I'm sure if she had had your treatment in earlier years she would never have had to go into the hospital at all."

WHAT THE PUBLISHER SAYS:

HOPE AND HELP FOR YOUR NERVES has sold over 250,000 copies and has been endorsed by medical and mental-health associations throughout the world. Millions of Americans have heard Dr. Weekes on television and radio shows and have read excerpts from the book which recently appeared in Reader's Digest.

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on...

"missed" heartbeats—"racing" heart—palpitations—or sudden sharp pains under the heart...

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs...

"churning" stomach... nausea... choking feeling in the throat... inability to take a deep breath... tight band of pain around the head..."ready to jump out of your skin"... strange tricks of vision ...weak spells... insomnia, that goes on night after night...

hand shaking... panic spasms... knots in your chest... dizziness... difficulty in swallowing... vomiting... and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled... And Then Diminished ...And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:

If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill... they have not deteriorated... they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED..."rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation... and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression... indecision... loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach... palpitating heart... never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous-symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs... NOT with shock ...NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranquilize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead —leave them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward— brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it!"

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from ...how "deeply entrenched" they are... how long you have been plagued by them... how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body!"

For example:

The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"— how to banish it in minutes... and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish!

How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion ...morning depression... thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sick-

Sports Mini-Profile

JOCKEY
"The Men Take Me Seriously Now!"

Pretty Robyn Smith is one female jockey who has proved she can compete with the men. In March, she became the first girl to win a major stakes race—the $25,000 Paumonok. She followed this up with an even bigger stakes win—the $50,000 Westchester Handicap. . . . When Robyn made her racing debut, she was billed as an ex-movie starlet, but she shrinks from this description. "It made everybody think I wasn't serious about racing," she explains. "Anyway, I never made a motion picture—I only made TV commercials. And riding horses was always my first love." . . . Robyn, now 28, began riding on a ranch near San Francisco as a child, then continued to ride in Hawaii when her family moved there. . . . "Riding keeps me fit and keeps my weight down," she says. "I like to eat, and I've got to be careful to keep my weight to 107." Horse racing severely restricts her social life. "I haven't time for much else besides racing, and things like marriage and a home have to wait," she says. . . . Robyn says physical strength isn't as important as ability to "communicate" with a horse. One rival male jockey, Angel Cordero, Jr., says of her, "She's real good; very intelligent the way she handles her horses, a pro all the way."

When Your Dog Begins to Shed. . . .

Almost all animals shed in the warmer months, and short-haired dogs are no exception. Some owners think that frequent bathing will help. While a dog welcomes a shampoo in hot weather, especially if it is followed by a good brushing, it will not cut down materially on shedding. The only solution is daily combing for longhairs or brushing for shorthairs. You can't give up. Regular treatment is essential if you are to keep your house from being upholstered in dog hair. If your pup is spending any time exploring the countryside, he may come home with burrs in his coat. Don't cut them out or pull them. Work in some Vaseline or mineral oil around the burrs; you can then remove them easily without yanking out the hair.

Don McLean: My Ten Favorite Records

Don McLean explains: "Each record has a place in my development. 1) Roscoe Holcomb and Wade Ward are my favorite 'old timey' musicians. 2) Sinatra is my favorite pop singer and his coupling with Basie on the LP is classic. 3) Buddy Holly we all know about now. 4) Aretha Franklin, my favorite female singer, is explosive on this live recording. 5) I was at the Weavers' reunion when this album was made and it changed my life. 6) Josh White is another favorite. 7-10) Bessie Smith is my favorite blues singer, Django Reinhardt is one of the all-time great guitarists, Lenny Bruce is my favorite comedian, and Elvis is my favorite wonder of the world."

Can People Read Your Thoughts by Looking at You?

By John E. Gibson

True or False: It tells a lot about your personality and general life-style if you're a heavy cigarette smoker. (See number 6)

There are telltale signs and revealing clues that will tell you a lot about a person's character, attitude and personality—if you know what to look for. In this True-or-False quiz, we zero in on some of them.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. By just watching his eyes, you can tell whether a person's brain is turning over—or whether he's just sitting there without a thought in his head.

2. If you've got ulcers—or are the so-called "ulcer-type"—it's likely to be revealed every time you frown.

3. If you particularly enjoy zany humor, incongruous or farcical situations and the like, this indicates that you are an unreliable type of person who is likely to go to pieces in a crisis.

4. If a person has a great deal of physical endurance, it tells a lot about his personality.

5. If a person has skin troubles, there's a good chance that he is quick to anger, but inclined to swallow his hostile feelings without expressing them.

6. It tells a lot about your personality and general life-style if you're a heavy cigarette smoker.

ANSWERS

1. True. When a person's brain is clicking, the pupils of his eyes grow larger. University studies show that "pupillary dilations accompany any substantial increase in mental activity."

2. True—according to the findings of a team of medical researchers. A study was made of 100 ulcer patients and 100 persons without ulcers. In the investigation, each subject "was asked to frown, and the number of well-defined vertical furrows appearing on his forehead (in the middle area) were counted." The ulcer group had roughly twice as many vertical creases in their brows as the control group.

3. False. Psychological studies show that if you are partial to zany or farcical humor, this is an indication that you possess a high degree of self-reliance and can be counted on in a crisis situation. Tests showed that people who are lacking in self-reliance tend to be disturbed and discomfited by offbeat or bizarre humor.

4. True. U.S. Army studies have demonstrated that physical endurance is related more to personality characteristics than physique. In an endurance test, subjects were instructed to "walk as long as possible at 75 percent of their maximum walking speed on a treadmill." All subjects were subsequently given standard personality tests. Findings: While walking speed was related to muscular fitness and body build, endurance—ability to continue walking for a longer period—was related more to personality factors. The investigation showed that the endurance-oriented individuals tended to share the following characteristics: resourcefulness, capability, intellectual efficiency, ability to relate to others, responsibility, tolerance and self-confidence.

5. True. As one authority observes in summing up the findings of leading studies, one of the outstanding traits of persons with skin ailments is hostility—being quick to feel anger or resentment—and failing to provide these emotions with means of expression. Indeed, unexpressed anger is cited as "a direct or indirect cause of dermatitis (skin inflammation)."

6. True—according to the findings of a university study that evaluated the personality characteristics of persons who were heavy cigarette smokers. Psychological tests showed that they tended to be bolder, more impulsive, more excitement-seeking and more inclined to disregard danger than others. The investigators also noted that "the heavy smoker often engages in the practice as an extension of his personal life-style, and utilizes it to deal with aspects of his life that may engender tension, irritation and boredom."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

ADOLESCENCE

Adolescents adolesce.
It's something they must do, I guess.
To adolesce is to go through
A stage, as other creatures do.
The butterfly, thus, oft a thriller,
Must for a while be caterpillar.

Now don't expect too much, my friends,
When, one day, adolescing ends.
There won't be such amazing things
As, for example, sprouting wings
Or other alterations strange.
It will, though, be a welcome change.

My five-year-old son, Jimmy, is forever trying to think up excuses for staying up two or three minutes later at bedtime. One day last week, he called me into his room and asked me to see if there was anything in his eye. I looked and said, "No." With a very concerned look on his face he said, "Good, cause I couldn't see anything in there either."

HAIRDRESSER PIERRE WITH MODEL, DURING AND AFTER
What's new in hair care?

His fame is mud: Hairdresser Pierre Alexandre's answer to greasy hair problems is mud. Not just any old mud, but thick gray mud from Morocco. He's been flying it home to England by the ton, to his salon. The trick of it, says Pierre, "is that the mud contains sulfur, which removes excess grease from the pores of the scalp, just as a mud pack does on the face. After the hair is dried with ultraviolet heat, it is grease-free for at least a week." Model Elzaine Farnworth's reaction to the treatment: "I don't mind the mud if it does the trick."

A CRY FOR HELP
Mini-alarm aids the ill

Ever passed by someone who's collapsed, figuring he's "another drunk," and then felt a twinge of guilt because he might have been a heart-attack victim? To the genuinely ill person, it could be a matter of life and death to be left unaided on the pavement. This problem bothered a New York City jewelry designer so much that he designed an electronic alarm about the size of a cigarette pack, that easily can be set off by a person feeling a heart, diabetic, or epileptic attack coming on. The alarm is a shriek so piercing that if used at home it can even be heard by neighbors. It can include information about the probable illness, and the name and address of the victim's doctor. The device costs $5, and can be ordered from the designer, Stanley Hagler, 55 East 9th St., New York, N.Y. 10003.

When a movie script calls for Charles de Gaulle, the late president of France, what's a film maker to do? Director Fred Zinnemann faced up to the problem when making "Day of the Jackal" by hiring actor Adrien Cayla-Legrand—who bears a remarkable resemblance to De Gaulle—and enhancing the similarity by setting Cayla-Legrand to studying old newsreels of De Gaulle so that he could assume the posture and mannerisms associated with the general.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

"WHY DOES THE MOON SHINE?"

THE MOON GIVES OFF NO LIGHT OF ITS OWN. WHEN THE MOON SHINES, IT IS REALLY REFLECTING THE LIGHT OF THE SUN. SOMETIMES THE MOON IS IN THAT PART OF THE SKY WHERE WE SEE SUNSHINE ON ITS WHOLE FACE. THEN WE HAVE A FULL MOON. BUT, WHEN THE SUNLIT SIDE IS THE ONE FACING AWAY FROM EARTH, WE CAN SEE LITTLE OR NOTHING OF THE MOON. THE LIGHT AND DARK SPOTS ARE CAUSED BY THE VALLEYS AND MOUNTAINS ON THE MOON, WHICH REFLECT THE SUNLIGHT UNEVENLY.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—Those who like to embroider often have trouble keeping the colors of thread separated. To make an embroidery thread dispenser that will keep the strands separated, wrap thread in a ball, punch a small hole in the bottom of each section of an egg carton and put a ball in each section with the thread sticking through a hole. An annoying problem is solved.—SANDRA

DEAR POLLY—Spraying extra starch on the knees of my children's jeans and play clothes keeps the soil from grinding into the fabric and still washes out easily.—DEB

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—My father made a great thread rack for my grandmother by driving about 20 finishing nails into an old breadboard. Each nail was bent slightly upward so the spools hang on the nails. She easily can spot any desired color.—LISA

DEAR POLLY—Girls who have lots of hair ribbons they do not know what to do with could nail a towel rack or curtain rod to the wall of a bedroom closet and hang the ribbons on it so they are always neat and wrinkle-free.—CHRISTA

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is for teenagers who would like to give their bedrooms the look of sitting rooms where they could more comfortably entertain their friends. Make the bed look like a couch by placing it flat against the wall so that the head and foot serve as arms. Obviously, this is only possible with a twin-size bed. Stack big pillows across the back and make a tuck-in spread to match the pillow covers. Those who are really ambitious can top it all with a regal-looking canopy of the same fabric suspended over the bed from a metal ring such as used for shower curtains. —BONNIE

DEAR POLLY—I had a number of small school pictures I wanted to display. I bought a large picture frame, laid all the pictures face down on the inside of the glass, carefully laid a piece of felt (cut to size) over them and then slipped in the cardboard and other backing. This holds quite a few pictures and they are in nice order.—NADINE

DEAR POLLY—Did you know that a piece of old nylon stocking placed over a hair brush will clean the hair and remove dust, grease and so on? This is ideal for invalids and people who cannot wash their hair for some time.—MINNIE

DEAR POLLY—I put all my half-used bags of brown sugar, powdered sugar and so on in the large-size salad dressing jars with tight lids. I label each jar by writing the name on masking tape applied to one side of the jar. Before shopping I merely glance at these jars to see what is needed. This method of storage also keeps the contents more moist.—J. W.
